FIRE LIEUT. DIES IN GAS MASK

Says Churchill to Shaw
One Short Story
Other Prohibition News
The Next War, Where?

By Arthur Brisbane

WINSTON CHURCHILL does not like things said by Bernard Shaw and Lady Astor on their return from Russia and skirts close to the edge of the British libel law, telling what he thinks of them.

He describes Shaw, "preaching ownership of all forms of wealth by the state," and adds, "but no one squealed more shrilly than he when Lloyd George introduced the supertaxes on incomes."

Churchill criticizes Lady Astor for her friendly comment on Russian methods, lugging in the fact that Lord Astor, the week before his wife went to Russia, "had been awarded fifteen million dollars returned from taxation by the American courts."

An interesting word-war may follow Churchill's attack on the two, well able to talk back.

Lady Astor might decline the discussion on the ground that Churchill is unworthy of her verbal steel, being only half, while she is one hundred per cent American.

With England in her present condition, Britishers might be grateful for new ideas, brought from Russia, or anywhere.

One short police story in New York lights up our civilization, its politics, finance, prohibition, all included.

A young state senator from New Jersey, visiting a lady in New York, spent much of the night "helping her to drink four or five bottles of gin." That seems a good many, but the police say it was done.

Then the lady shot the senator, and he probably will die. Neither cares to talk about it.

The governor of New Jersey wants to know how the woman got various checks drawn to her order by the state of New Jersey, and who put her, a resident of New York City, on a New Jersey payroll.

Following the horrible killing of two young girls and two high school boys, in Michigan, the governor of that state says things that interest all sincere prohibitionists, or ought to.

He says the three murderers killed the four young people, robbing and burning their bodies, to get more money to buy "white mule," a bootleg poison that made murderers of them.

Governor Brucker learns that there are, just outside of Michigan cities, "thousands of resorts where poisonous moonshine and liquors made from raw alcohol are sold, almost openly."

These resorts, the governor of Michigan says, "pander to our young folks and act as rendezvous. They are responsible for our crowded prisons and the crime wave that is a challenge to the state."

The governor might have added that the four boys and girls had been trailed by their killers from a roadside inn to the secluded spot where they parked their car.

The governor's demand that bootleg whiskey and the resorts that sell it be wiped out is, and will remain futile while prohibition lasts.

The most earnest prohibitionist, convinced that his theory ought to succeed, whether it does or not, must admit that it has not kept its promise to "empty the prisons."

The government seized in a fashionable quarter of New York city an enormous still producing nearly 30,000 gallons of alcohol daily, and actually yielding profits between eight and ten million dollars a year. Quite an industry.

The law allows confiscation of real estate thus employed. The government takes steps to confiscate and the New York Title Company asks, "What about my mortgage for $1,800,000, placed on the property, in good faith, before you seized it."

New Yorkers are moaning about their real estate, hit by hard times, taxed destructively by a city government that spends in a year one hundred millions more than the federal government spent before the war.

If now the government can seize property used by bootleggers, even though its owner knows nothing of the law violation, the real estate cup of sorrow will be running over.

Numerous prophets, telling you when and where the next war will start and "wipe out white civilization," overlooks Asia.

RICH WIDOW ENDS LIFE IN CEMETERY

Mrs. Elizabeth Bond Sweatt Puts Bullet in Brain in Mt. Auburn

Mrs. Elizabeth Bond Sweatt, 77, widow of the millionaire head of the American Felt Co., shot and killed herself today in the caretaker's office of Mt. Auburn Cemetery, where her husband is buried.

Grief for her husband was the reason for her act, according to relatives, who said she had visited his grave two or three times a week since his death two years ago.

Mrs. Sweatt lived at 9 East st., Wrentham. Under her husband's will she had received the income of his estate of several million dollars, which, with her death, will go to charities.

FOUND IN WASHROOM.

Her husband, William H. Sweatt, was an important witness in the famous Willett, Sears suit against Boston and New York bankers several years ago, which set a record, both for length and amount of award, although the Supreme Court set aside the finding later.

Mrs. Sweatt was found in the washroom of the office, a bullet hole in her right temple and an old-fashioned revolver at her side.

The cemetery, in which are buried many men and women famous in Massachusetts history, is on the Cambridge-Watertown boundary.

NIECE AWAITED HER.

At the time the shot was fired Mrs. Sweatt's niece, Mrs. Marjorie Bond Crowley, of High st., Reading was waiting for her in an automobile at the cemetery gate. A chauffeur was also in the machine, but neither heard the shot.

The body was found by Miss Bessie Yingling, who lives at the Boston Y. W. C. A. She notified cemetery employes, who called the police.

With arrival of police, Mrs. Crowley for the first time learned that something happened to her aunt.

BAIL DOUBLED FOR 5 IN PLOT TO TORTURE

Held on Charge of Attempt to Burn Newton Man to Force the Payment of a Debt

Jail closed today on five men alleged to have intended torturing Warren F. Scott, Newton realtor, to force collection of an asserted $600 debt.

The stunned five who had expected to have their bail of $10,000 each reduced, heard it raised instead to $20,000 in Newton court this morning when they were held for the Grand Jury—and then they went to East Cambridge jail in lieu of the bonds.

A sixth man was in the alleged torture party, police testified in court, but evidence against him will be presented to the Grand Jury instead of police arresting him now.

The five held in $20,000 each were Arnold Sullivan, 37, a roofing contractor, and his brother, Ralph N. Sullivan, 28, both of First st., Melrose; George T. Batchelder, 20, of Cedar St., Beverly; Harold C. Lord, 21, of Essex st., Beverly, and Harry N. Ruest, 22, of Munroe st. Beverly.

SEVERAL CHARGES

All were charged with conspiracy to steal and assault with intent to rob. In addition, Arnold F. Sullivan and Ruest were charged with carrying sawed-off shotguns, while Ralph N. Sullivan was charged with carrying a revolver.

The men intended tieing up Mrs. Scott and their daughter Dorothy,

Hospital Ousts Mother as She Berates Girl 'Suicide'

Loudly berating her 17-year-old daughter, Sally, for a suicide attempt, Mrs. Bernard Devlin of Decatur st., Charlestown, caused such a scene in the emergency ward in Massachusetts General hospital today that she was ejected.

She had gone to the hospital on insistence of a policeman, after she had said she would not see her daughter again, unless the girl died.

As she emerged from the hospital, after upbraiding the girl in the presence of doctors, nurses and other patients, she blamed the "petting and gin parties of young people nowadays" and declared that her daughter would "be barred from my house forever."

After the disturbance in the emergency ward, the girl was so affected by her mother's words, according to hospital officials, that she had to be removed to another ward and given special treatment.

Sally Devlin swallowed poison before leaping into the Charles River from the Esplanade last night. She was rescued by James Fay of Garden st., West End, assisted by Patrolman Joseph Arsenault. Doctors expect her to recover.

"I watched my daughter closely all her life, but I guess it's the children that are well taken care of that go astray," said the mother. "My daughter won't veer come into my house again, she's barred forever.

"It's the petting parties and the gin parties nowadays that ruin the young people. I tried to keep Sally away from them but she wouldn't come home at a reasonable hour.

CONDEMNS MODERN YOUTH

"She left Saturday evening to go to Roxbury for her pay and she didn't come back. I guess she was afraid to after staying out Saturday night.

"Poor people have enough to worry about, with paying the milk bills and all the other bills, without having to worry about daughters who want to take their own lives.

"The way I see young people these days sitting in the back seats of automobiles, the girls with their dresses up above their knees, nauseates me."

CONNOLLY FREE IN RED RIOT

Atty. Thomas G. Connolly, brother of James B. Connolly, writer of sea stories, was found not guilty today in municipal court of speaking on Boston Common without a permit.

Connolly was arrested August 1 just before a Red meeting was broken up by 12 other arrests.

Judge Francis J. Good listened only to Connolly after police presented the charges, telling the attorney he need not call other witnesses and finding him not guilty.

Connolly said he talked on the common with a group of friends and had told the group he believed the presence of police with guns was the cause of all the Red riots.

Police Sergt McNeil of the LaGrange st. station told the court he warned Connolly several times.

TRAIN IS HALTED AT DYING MAN

The act of an unsung hero saved an Elevated trackwalker from being ground to death at Boylston st. station of the Washington st. tunnel, but the worker died later from injuries received from a fall in the pit.

The trackwalker, Dennis McCarthy, 63, of Semont rd., Dorchester, stumbled as he walked the pit and was rendered semi-conscious when his head hit the track.

A train thundered toward the station but a waiting passenger tore a red flag from the wall and attracted the attention of Motorman Albert L. Scheuler.

Scheuler threw the train into reverse and succeeded in stopping before the wheels reached McCarthy.

The passenger refused his name and edged away from the plaudits of those who witnessed the act.

McCarthy was lifted to the platform and taken to City Hospital. He died of a compound fracture of the skull.

He was employed by the Elevated for 41 years and was the father of four sons and two daughters.

She will be held in probe of minor points in the crime.

GIVES LIFE TRYING TO RESCUE 2 OTHERS

Cambridge Chief Is Charged With Negligence Following Tragedy

Wearing a gas mask which he had fought for months to have adopted by the Cambridge Fire Department, Lieut. William Atkinson, 55, descended into a gas-filled pit today to rescue another fireman and an auto mechanic.

Atkinson collapsed and died before he reached the bottom of the pit, the mask in which he had placed his faith failing him.

Rockwell Berard, 26, of 191 Hampshire st., Cambridge, the auto mechanic, also died from the fumes.

Ladderman James Breslin of Engine 4, who had gone ahead of Lieut. Atkinson without a gas mask, was hauled out of the pit unconscious, but is recovering.

Removal of Fire Chief James M. Casey was demanded of Mayor Richard M. Russell by Representative Timothy Croning in a message to the mayor immediately after the tragedy.

NEGLIGENCE CHARGED.

Cronin charged that the fire chief was negligent in failing to have firemen supplied with oxygen-tank masks.

Acting Fire Chief Cutler L. Vose said that oxygen-tank masks were too bulky to take into the pit, even if Atkinson had one. Mayor Russell ordered Vose to conduct a thorough investigation.

The Cambridge mayor said he might call Chief Casey from his vacation if it appears to be necessary. He said the mas used by Atkinson was selected on recommendation of experts, although it cost twice as much as other types.

The tragedy occurred in the yard of the Martin LeBeau garage on Hadley st., North Cambridge, after Berard had gone down inot the long-unused pit to get a crankcase screw-plug which he had dropped.

He was draining the oil from a

Tolischus, After European Survey, Believes Quick Action Can Save England

(EDITOR'S NOTE — Otto D. Tolischus, European director of International News Service, has been a close student of European politics and economics for a great many years. He was stationed at Berlin for several years and during that time visited Moscow, Vienna, Bucharest and many other cities throughout central Europe, he has talked with cabinet ministers and political leaders of all countries. Mr. Tolischus is an American-trained newspaper man.)

By OTTO D. TOLISCHUS.

London, Aug. 17—The German dam against Bolshevism is broken.

Broad streams of Red ideology, pouring through huge gaps and winding through the manifold phases of German life, are beginning to lap the shores of England.

This is the appalling, but world-historic, truth dawning upon Europe and the world.

This is the reason that the British Government has proclaimed a national emergency and called statesmen of all parties to help ramify the bulwarks and erect a new line of defense against the red tide by stabilizing finances through common sacrifice as in time of war.

It is becoming apparent that a great social revolution is sweeping the world, likely to be as fate-truck into the hole, and it is believed this oil, with the gasoline which was mixed with it, created the deadly fumes.

GAS KILLS TWO IN CAMBRIDGE

Lieut. Atkinson only last month succeeded in having the fire department adopt gas masks, after long opposition by Fire Chief Casey, who declared they were seldom of any practical use.

On July 26 they were introduced and two days later, after an ammonia leak in a refrigeration plant, Atkinson wrote on his report:

"I used the new gas mask and it worked perfectly."

Today another officer wrote a report of the lieutenant's heroism and death.

Showing Atkinson's mask to newspapermen, Deputy Fire Chief Voss silently pointed to an inscription upon it:

"This canister must not be used in atmospheres deficient in oxygen."

The gas mask is, however, officially named an "all-service" accessory.

BOY GIVES ALARM.

Berard's employers said that they could not account for his using the manhole to drain the oil into, because it had been the custom for a long time to drain oil off into buckets.

In the midst of the operation he dropped the crankcase plug into the hole. Berade descended the ladder to the bottom of the tank, ten feet below.

A few minutes later Robert Murray, 14, of Hadley st., who happened to walk into the yard, heard Berard's groans. The boy looked into the pit and ran to the North Cambridge police station to give the alarm.

Breslin, armed with grappling irons, descended into the hole to haul Berard out. Before he could attach the irons to the stricken man's body, Breslin was overcome.

While his comrades worked frantically above to haul the two unconscious men to the surface, Lieut. Atkinson donned a gas mask and dropped down the ladder. So strong were the fumes that they penetrated his mask, and he fell across the bodies of Breslin and Berard.

Finally brought to the surface by the grappling apparatus, the three unconscious men were rushed to Cambridge Hospital. Within a short time after their admission Atkinson and Berard died.

Breslin, who was in the hole longer than his lieutenant, rallied from the effects of the gas, and was pronounced on the road to recovery.

FATHER OF TWO

Lieut. Atkinson, one of the most popular officers of the Cambridge department, had been on the regular rolls of the force since 1902. Prior to that time he was for two years a call man and a substitute at Ladder 2.

He was given his lieutenancy in 1912. He was a member of Elks, the Knights of Columbus and Massachusetts State Firemen's Relief Association. He is survived by his widow and two children.

Leo Atkinson, 29, son of the dead fire lieutenant, is somewhere on the Seven Seas aboard the Massachusetts Nautical School training ship Nantucket.

Stanley Howard, a nephew of Lieut. Atkinson, was one of the reporters on the scene when the lieutenant's body was hauled out of the pit.

The line at the top of this picture, written by Mr. Opper himself, expresses the emotions with which the artist gazed upon his own work when it was finished.

It is hard to believe that an eagle, on invitation of a pacifist, would suddenly become a rabbit. But Mr. Opper's picture proves that it is POSSIBLE.

The picture also shows what would happen if Uncle Sam did go too deep into rabbit ways, and changed his sharp beak for a soft muzzle, his sharp claws for little pitter-patter paws, and his lion-heart for a heart of mush.

Let us hope Uncle Sam will not undergo the unhappy lesson that would surely be his if he became an out and out rabbit.

The advice given by Mr. Opper in the lower right hand corner is advice that YOU would give. We hope our Congressmen will see this picture and, if they see it, that they will UNDERSTAND it.

5 CONFESS IN TORTURE PLOT

18, and then torturing Scott in front of their eyes, according to stories told by the defendants, Special Officer Francis G. Feeley, the only witness, testified.

Hot irons were to be applied to the realtor's feet to force from him payment of $600 the men alleged to be due from Scott for roofing work on his building projects.

ROUTED BY DOG

They are said to have met Scott outside his home and tried to overpower him, when Mrs. Scott, hearing her husband's calls for help, unleashed their police dog, Buddy, sending him to his master's aid. The realtor's assailants fled before the dog's rushes.

30 POLICEMEN NEAR

The men made their escape while, 300 yards away, 30 men of the Newton police force maintained fire lines around a two-alarm fire.

At the height of Chief Hughes' investigation, an anonymous telephone to police headquarters sent Sergt. Inspector Patrick F. King and a detail of men to Beverly, where the elder Sullivan was seized. After several hours' grilling he is said to have broken down, told the details of the holdup and named the others.

HEAVILY ARMED

The police reconstruction of the attack on Scott, pieced together from the realtor's story and the alleged confession of Arnold Sullivan revealed that the men came to the Scott home in a sedan and a small truck. Scott had just closed the garage doors upon his car and was entering the house when his assailants appeared, heavily armed.

According to Chief Hughes, they planned to bind Scott and wring from him by searing his feet the hiding place of money they believed he had cached in his home.

The Sullivan brothers and Rugit, police said, followed Scott, who recently went into bankruptcy, was accused by the five of failing to include in his list of liabilities the $600 debt they laid against him. Scott denied responsibility for the alleged debt, telling police that he had merely financed the building project in Stoneham on which the men worked.

Bathers, Even With Suits, Are Fined

Wareham, Aug. 17—The sad sea in Onset became sad indeed today as 10 bathers, one of them a demure little lady bather, paid $3 each to Wareham court for going bathing with bathing suits.

The bathers were charged with appearing on the sereets of Onset with bathing suits not covered by a wrap reaching to the knees.

However, the crime drive, which collected 11 such defendants in its grip, suffered the temporary loss of one when Miss Jean Wilson of Boston defaulted.

In imposing the fines, Judge Nathan Washburn peered down from the bench and declared to the culprits:

"I hope this will teach you a lesson and have a salient effect on summer resorts."

Those who paid fines were Miss Muriel L. Hinds, 19, of Roberts st., Attleboro; Frank R. Beede, Jr., Warren F. Falconer, John Benson and Thomas O'Neil, all of Dorchester; John B. O'Keefe of Boston; Joseph T. Hess and Mark D. Landsbourg, both of Lynn, and Albert M. Silva and Joseph Whaley, both of New Bedford.

N. E. PAVES WAY TO RECOVERY

New England is leading the country in emerging from the depression, according to figures of the New England Council for the first six months of the year.

In eight of nine indexes compiled by the council's statistical department New England is in a better position than the rest of the country by from 2 to 20 per cent.

Cotton consumption is the only point in which New England does not compare favorably with the rest of the country, although in the first six months this section's postion has improved from a point 11 per cent lower than the rest of the country to 2 per cent lower.

Officials of the council said the reasons New England has improved so well are development of new products, new and more aggressive merchandising methods and new and more efficient distribution plans.

AIRPLANE FINDS LOST JUDGE

Nantucket, Aug. 17—Judge George M. Poland of the Nantucket probate court and his son Warren, held for five days by motor failure and head winds on their yacht Warella off Grant Point, were safe at home today, towed to port by a lobster fisherman as friends were conducting a search at sea for them.

The jurist and his son were picked up by Joseph King, while coast guard patrol boats, and private craft were cruising the waters where they put to sea on a fishing trip last Tuesday, with Army and Navy planes assisting in the search.

"We were never in danger, except for the possibility that we might be run down by a steamer in the fog," Judge Poland said, as he came ashore and was greeted by friends about to embark on the search.

"When our motor stalled and the winds checked our progress, we made the best of things and settled down to fish until the wind changed."

Judge Frederick H. Davis, Judge Poland's law partner, sighted the Poland schooner from a plane yesterday, and brought back word that his partner was safe.

Mrs. Yates and Three Daughters Pray for the Quick Recovery of Senator

Paterson, N. J., Aug. 17 (INS)—While reverberations from the shooting of Senator Roy T. Yates in the apartment of his girl friend sounded throughout New Jersey, his wife and daughter today announced they were unshaken in their loyalty and devotion to him.

Hurt to the quick by published inferences that his family was not standing by him and was unconcerned as to his recovery, Mrs. Yates said:

"We shall be ready at his back and call praying only for his complete recovery.

"It is all a horrible dream. He may have strayed from the pathways, as who among us does not at some time in our lives?

"CAST NOT STONES"

"But I know it was only a temporary affair, just as a bad little boy strays from the home hearth and comes back to take a parental licking."

Opening the scriptures to the chapter where Christ said to the mob who were hurling abuses at Mary Magdalene: "Let him who is without sin among ye cast the first stone," Mrs. Yates said:

"I hope the rest of the world will remember what the Scriptures have taught us, 'Judge not, that ye be not judged.'

MAINE BOOTLEG TORTURED BY BOSTON GANG

Taken to Woods and Forced to Reveal "Hideout" of Rum Raided Three Weeks Ago

Portland, Me., Aug. 17 (AP)—The Portland Evening Express says that one of Portland's "big shot bootleggers" was beaten and tortured Friday night by five Boston rum-runners in retaliation for the hi-jacking of $10,000 worth of liquor the previous night.

The whiskey, the newspaper said, was part of the stock at a bootleggers "hide out" in Harpswell raided three weeks ago by Cumberland county and Boston officers. It was aboard a boat lying off shore ad was dumped overboard.

The Boston rum runners, according to the Express, returned to Harpswell Thursday, recovered the liquor and started it on a truck to Boston.

Two Washington ave. racketeers and two Millde st youths stopped the truck in Falmouth, according to the story, and took the liquor to a farm near Yarmouth.

Early Friday evening five Boston men arrived, armed with revolvers, picked up the bootlegger, who had been in charge of the hi-jacked liquor, and took him to some woods three miles from the city.

He was stripped and beaten and when he refused to tell where the liquor was hidden, word was sent to his friends that he would be "taken for a ride" unless the contraband was returned.

The location of the liquor was given and a truck took it to Boston.

IRISH RIOTERS STORM GATES OF CONVENT

Police Rushed From Belfast Halt Disorders After Wild Orange-Green Clashes

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Aug. 17 (AP)—Two nights of rioting in three towns have marked the feud between the "Orange" and the "Green."

A mob collected from surrounding districts marched around the town of Portadown, County of Armagh, last night and attempted to batter in the gates of a convent, using a handcart for a ram. Thwarted, they contented themselves by smashing windows in several shops.

Truckloads of police were rushed from Belfast and the special constabulary was mobilized, their combined forces restoring order. A head constable of the district was hurt when struck by a flying bottle.

Orangemen and Republicans Saturday night vied in hurling bottles and stones and damaging business houses. To the tune of "Dolly Brae" and "Derry's Walls," young men invaded the recreation rooms of St. Catherine's Hall and poked out every window.

Four arrests were made in Armagh City in similar encounters before order was restored. A shop was burned in Lisbon, near here, and stones were hurled into the parish house.

REALTOR FOUND DEAD ON DUMP

New York, Aug. 17 (US)—The body of Walter E. Mezick, millionaire Queens realty developer, who had been missing strangely since Thursday, has been found on the municipal dump.

The throat was slashed. A razor was found 100 yards away and Mezick's coat about 50 yards away. He had been dead at least two days, doctors said.

The body was found by Walter Knickman, one of six private detectives employed by Mrs. Mezick in the search. She said he left home with a considerable sum of cash.

Police doubted the robbery motive, however, and said they had found a witness whose story suggested that the realty man, one of the biggest builders in Queens and Long Island, died a suicide.

Roberts as Convict Must Face Vengeance of Runners He Convicted

Asst. U. S. Atty.-Gen. G. Allen Youngquist arrived in Boston today and went into a secret conference with prohibition officials on the New England liquor situation.

Coming from Providence, where he conducted a personal investigation into charges of graft in the Rhode Island prohibition forces, Youngquist announced he would confer later with U. S. Atty. Frederick H. Tarr.

His arrival at the Federal Building was unheralded, although it ha been expected by officials probing alleged "shakedown" activities of prohibition agents.

ATLANTA FOR SPY

It was understood the conference would take up among other things, the subject of two local agents who were involved in the charges made at Providence.

In the meantime James H. 'Slim Roberts, former prohibition undercover man, who was the cause of the investigation in Rhode Island, lost his plea for a change of imprisonment.

U. S. District Judge Letts at Providence denied Roberts' petition for a change to some other Federal prison than Atlanta where he was sentenced for a year and a day...

Roberts, whose affidavit resulted in the recent suspension of Prohibition Agents Robert L. Bowlin and Howard F. Richards, was found guilty of breaking probation by accompanying them to speakcasies and roadhouses.

In his petition Roberts said four inmates of Atlanta had threatened

'Sacco Day' Memorial Blocked

An application by the International Labor Defense of 113 Dudley st., Roxbury, for a permit to use Parkman Bandstand on the Common for a Sacco-Vanzetti memorial meeting, was refused by City Censor John H. Casey today.

In the application Harry J. Canter, district secretary-organizer, said the permit was desired for Saturday, Aug. 22, from 1:30 to 3:30. He said a demonstration would also be staged in favor of amnesty for all political prisoners in the United States.

Censor Casey informed Canter the permit was refused because the rules of the park department provide that the bandstand should not be used for such purposes.

He added that the Charles st. mall could be had if desired, but Canter failed to apply for a permit for its use. If the mall is used only a small crowd could attend as police would not permit the blocking of the sidewalk.

AUTO PLEA WON BY SIDLINGER

Charged with "connection with the Garrett case," Albert K. Sidlinger of Myrtle st., West End, fought—and won—today against cancellation of his automobile insurance.

Sidlinger, who served at Deer Island for alleged conspiracy in the Hotel Ritz cases, and now asks a full pardon, was notified by the Employers Liability Assurance Corp., Ltd., that his insurance would be cancelled Aug. 21.

With his son, Albert W., 5, he appeared before the board of insurance appeals in the State House in protest today.

Roger Coulter, counsel for the insurance company, handed the board a record of the Sidlinger case.

"The only evidence we offer is this record showing he is Albert K. Sidlinger, convicted of extortion from Mr. Sullivan of Hotel Ritz," Coulter said.

"He said 'extortion.' It was not extortion. It was misdemeanor," Sidlinger shouted.

"I have driven a car more than 100,000 miles and have never been accused of anything nor even been tagged.

"This is nothing but rank discrimination."

Sidlinger than reviewed the Ritz cases while his boy held tightly to Coulter or the company. his hand.

Experts Finding Out Why Our Lingo Ticks

DIALECT SURVEY TO SHOW WHY YOU SAY IT

What Makes a Cow a Caow in N. E., Where Pop and "Sody" Become "Tonic"?

Caow milkers of Vermont and those that rope cows out thar in the open spaces were put under a linguistic microscope today, starting in New England, to determine the why of dialect, if any.

Experts of the American Council of Learned Societies, sponsoring the survey, want to know—if they can find out—why "podner" in the West means something not associated with business, as it is in the East.

They want to know also why a person lives in "the holler" in New England while downhill residence in the wind-blown areas is described as "the gulch" and in the southern gentleman districts as "the dale" or "the dell."

The world is expected to be a better place to live in, we reckon, when the lingo sharps have compiled the results of their studies in a special report.

OUR VARYING TALK

Right here, however, a special defy should be unhitched in the general direction of the dialect-delvers to discover why some of our local upstate gentlemen still reply to surprise information with, "Well, I swan!"—and why a large, proud bird was picked on for usage in this connection.

"Hot Cakes," if you have encountered it, mean nothing to a waiter or waitress in Boston for instance, while if you said "griddle cakes" to a servitor in—say, Dallas, Tex. that personage would gaze upon you with a puzzled 12-pound look.

Life is like that in these untongue-tied states, where a team in one section means a wagon—and in another section a pair of horses, and in still another a pair of horses hitched to a wagon.

People who couldn't add a column of figures twice the same way to save their necks, or divide three and two-fifths into 17 still say "I reckon" in some sections of this land of ours, while tonic in Boston becomes pop on the sun-toasted steppes of Michigan.

TO GET THE ACCENT.

But the inflections of speech and the way they differ, are the principal objectives of the surveyors.

When it's morning in broad-A'd

'HEALER' AGAIN CALLED DEAD

Trance or no trance, the Rev. Charles Fellows Gray tattooed 51-year-old night watchman healer, was pronounced dead again today at the Southern Mortuary.

The Rev. Mr. Gray, who went into a trance at 3 a. m. yesterday in presence of a group of friends, and failed to come out of it, was first pronounced dead at 8 p. m. yesterday.

"If a doctor ever pronounces me dead, keep a watch over my body for at least 24 hours," the tatooed healer had frequently warned his associates. "I may be in a trance."

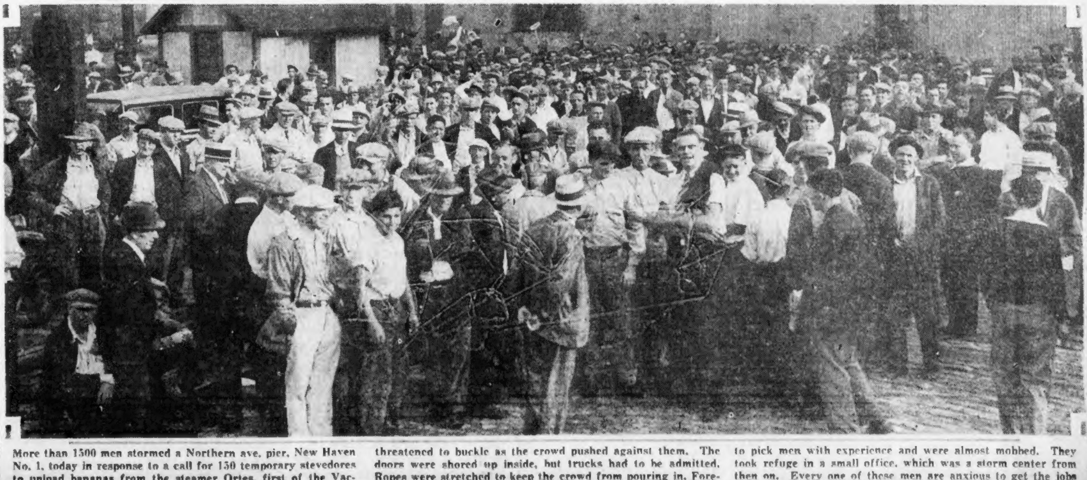
When a son, Horace Gray of [illegible] Newcastle rd., Brighton, called at the morgue today, however, Medical Examiner Timothy Leary made a second pronouncement and told the son his father had died of angina pectoris, or acute heart trouble.

The 24-hour period set by the Rev. Gray to be for vigil after being pronounced dead, will not be up until 8 o'clock tonight, but, nevertheless, none of his followers kept the instructed watch over the still and white-sheeted body at the mortuary.

An Englishman, the Rev. Gray had surrounded himself with a small but earnest group of followers in his tenement church in Huntington ave., and on previous occasions he had slipped similarly into trances, they told police and had remained for several hours as if in death.

His request for a 24-hour vigil after death then was made known by a woman follower, who said Gray's teachings had helped her.

1500 Unemployed Storm Northern Ave. Pier for 150 Jobs to Unload Banana Boat



More than 1500 men stormed a Northern ave. pier, New Haven No. 1, today in response to a call for 150 temporary stevedores to unload bananas from the steamer Ortes, first of the Vaccaro Bros. Fruit Co. vessels to dock in Boston. Huge doors threatened to buckle as the crowd pushed against them. The doors were shored up inside, but trucks had to be admitted. Ropes were stretched to keep the crowd from pouring in. Foremen arrived to do the hiring and struggled through the crowd to pick men with experience and were almost mobbed. They took refuge in a small office, which was a storm center from then on. Every one of these men are anxious to get the jobs offered. (Staff photo.)

HOOVER'S LAW BOARD AGAIN UNDER FIRE

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE
Universal Service

Washington, Aug. 17—The Wickersham commission on law enforcement have found it "impossible comprehensively" to discuss the causes of crime, in a special report to President Hoover.

The commission was taken sharply to task for the omission by Col. Henry W. Anderson, Virginia, who took sharp exception to such conclusions as were arrived at. He is the commissioner who refused to sign a previous report on prohibition and submitted his own ideas of advocating the sale of liquor under what is now known as the "Anderson Plan." In declining to sign today's report, Col. Anderson said:

"UNABLE TO CONCUR"

"I am unable to concur in the disposition made by the commission regarding the causes of crime."

Although Col. Anderson scores the brevity of the study, the report is by far the most voluminous submitted by the commission, embracing approximately 300 pages. It was so extensive, it was said at the White House, that the President will send it to Congress without reading it.

While a great amount of data on glands controlling personality, environment and juvenile delinquency were given, only a few paragraphs touched prohibition in crime and narcotics were ignored.

Colonel Anderson expressed the belief there would be a sharp increase in crime with the unemployment situation, pointing out that crimes against property always are most prevalent when there is idleness and hunger. He said the automobile, motion picture and communication in general had brought a new element into crime.

SALEM DEATH UNDER PROBE BY POLICE

Salem, Aug. 17—Under circumstances so strange as to warrant an investigation by the medical examiner, Mrs. Ruth E. Farrell, 27, who roomed on Moffat rd., died at Salem Hospital, a victim of a strange poison. The fact that she was expected to be married within a few weeks added to the mystery.

Mrs. Farrell had been employed by a dress shop here two years. She had been well, except for a small sore on her chin, which she had been treating with a special preparation.

Little information was available to police. It was stated that the young woman had complained of soreness about the face, and had applied some of the drug store preparation she had been using, about two hours before she was suddenly stricken.

MAY DENY R. R. RATE BOOST

Washington, Aug. 17 (US)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today will resume hearings of Eastern shippers protesting a 15 per cent freight rate increases by railroads.

The railroads ask a flat boost in all rates, with exception of coal and coke.

Commission members have indicated that a majority feels that there is serious question whether a 15 per cent raise will help the roads.

Certain members of the commission believe that an increase would curtail revenues by throwing transportation to the pipelines, bus lines, water and air transportation.

North End Man Hurt as Auto Hits Pole

Joseph Barbos, 48, of Hanover ave., North End, was cut and bruised today when a sedan went out of control on Cambridge st., Brighton, and was wrecked against a pole.

Barbos was a passenger with Charles DeStefano of Chelsea st., East Boston. He was treated at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

WOMEN FIGHT JOB OUSTERS

Washington, Aug. 17—The National Woman's Party has violently protested the action of the President's emergency committee for unemployment in commending the decision of the Cotton Textile Institute to dismiss women from night work jobs.

The move is prejudicial to the rights of women, it is contended.

Miss Joseph Casey, woman's party field representative in Georgia, and herself a woman worker, in a statement declared:

"Must thousands be thrown out of work through the brilliant ignorance of any committee? Numerous cases here where women do night work show that they do it out of preference, either because of home situations or because it is cooler to work at night."

to do him bodily harm when he arrived at the prison.

He gave their names as Johnny Campbell, Joe Green, Harry "Dutch" Leonard and Michael Marcelli, now serving 15 years for robbing the federal liquor warehouse in Providence. Roberts testified against them as star witness for the government.

The conference will be occupied, according to federal authorities here, with a discussion of income tax evasions and the conduct of federal affairs in general in the Boston district.

HIGHER UPS ARE SOUGHT

Youngquist's trip to Boston, it was revealed, augurs serious trouble for several prominent lawyers, politicians and "big shots" in sporting circles. The government wants to inspect their bank accounts and sources of income, and it was said that pointed questions would be asked regarding their reported connections with rum-running rings.

There will be a probe of reports that speakeasies are operating in the city with the connivance of federal agents, and that the agents have profited greatly thereby. There will be a scrutiny of gents' incomes, and should any of the men find difficulty in explaining deposits in their banks and evidences of living beyond their legitimate incomes, there will be prompt federal action.

The income tax investigation will be conducted principally from the angle of illigitimate fortunes said to be piling into the coffers of men in high places from the reputed three-cornered combine of federal agents, rum-runners and the men whose prominence enables them to finance and protect the traffic in liquor.

There are so few people on this earth that all of them could stand, at one time, on Staten Island, in New York's harbor. The single State of Texas, intensively cultivated, could feed them all.

There is, on earth, more of everything than any could use, or it could quickly be produced.

Boston, why should it be mawnin'" in No'th and South Ca'lina, suh?

The investigators expect to interrogate about 1000 persons in each dialect section of the nation—and note down the arrangement of words in the answers to questions—and the accents and slurs given the words.

Dr. Hans Kurath of Ohio State University, in charge of the survey, will handle the investigation in Connecticut with Prof. Miles L. Hanley of the University of Wisconsin.

Massachusetts will be taken care of by Martin Joos, also of Wisconsin, and Cassil Reynard, formerly of Case School of Applied Science, Cleveland.

WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

Dr. Guy Lowman of Yale will survey Vermont.

"It has taken more than two years of preparatory work," said Dr. Kurath today," to determine what questions should comprise the questionnaire.

"The first part covers the common words used in daily life to describe such things as the home, food, clothing, furniture, dishes, farm implements and water. Other parts deal with special or set phrases and expressions, the use of singular and plural verbs and peculiarities of sentence structure.

"While the average American may think we all speak the same language, this is true only in a measure. Certain studies which have been made show that in some words there are from 1500 to 2000 variable features which are shown in spelling, vocabulary, inflection, or use in a set phrasing."

Approximately 150,000 men will be given employment directly and indirectly during the winter, and, as more projects get underway, the number will be increased. At present government building construction is providing employment for 32,000.

Work will start before winter on new buildings in Chicago, South Bend, Indiana, Philadelphia, parcel post building and postoffice annex at New York, Detroit, St. Louis, Jacksonville, and Miami, Fla., Chattanooga, and Knoxville. The cost of these totals more than $50,000,000. In Washington building totaling about $37,000,000 will get under way.

KING AND QUEEN LIVING APART

Zagreb, Jugoslavia, Aug. 17 (AP)—Folks were wondering today whether King Alexander and Queen Marie, his Rumanian wife, are estranged.

They spent apart yesterday, the tenth anniversary of the King's accession to the throne. He was shooting on his summer estate at Pijesak and she reviewed a naval parade at Constanza.

King Alexander did not attend the wedding of Princess Ileana to Archduke Anton last month. The Queen was reported displeased by his absence.

The Queen since then has been living with her mother, Dowager Queen Marie, in the latter's castle at Baltchik and the King has been occupying himself here with affairs of state.

Find Dutch Warship Sunk in Thames by British in 1667

London, Aug. 17 (INS)—Half-buried in the mud of more than 200 years, a vessel believed to be the Dutch warship Admiral Van Tromp, sunk by the British in 1667, has been discovered near the Nore lightship at the mouth of the Thames by the salvage ship Yantlet of the Port of London authority.

Accurate identification of the ship will be impossible, because it is to be blown up.

Discovery of the ship recalls records of the daring dash of the Dutch Admiral De Ruyter into the Thames, where he burned the Sheerness dockyard and several warships which had taken refuge in the Medway.

BANDITS ROB DEAF MUTE

Frank Landers, 40, a deaf mute of Tufts st., Everett, was attacked and robbed of $92 in Roxbury early today, it was reported to police of Station 10, Roxbury.

According to Landers, he was walking along Shawmut ave., when he was stopped by an unidentified Negro woman who asked him to accompany her to the roof of a four-story building at 3 Worth pl., Roxbury. When he reached the roof he was attacked by an unidentified Negro man who ordered him to hand over his money.

THREATENED IN WHOLEAN CASE

Washington, Aug. 17 (INS)—Two letters threatening William Carter, negro coachman and later chauffeur for the late Mrs. Mary F. Henderson, society dictator and widow of the Missouri Senator, if he does not make "a complete confession" as to the "parentage" of Mrs. Beatrice Henderson Wholean were turned over to police today.

Mrs. Wholean, ignored in Mrs. Henderson's last will and given only a small sum from the $5,000,000 estate in another of the six wills, was recognized by society as the "dowager's granddaughter until the widow remarked in a court petition that she had adopted Mrs. Wholean and asked permission to cancel the adoption papers.

The sum brought the total profits for the year to $4,021,510, or about $600,000 less than the profits for the year ending March 31, 1930.

CUBAN REVOLT NEARING END

Havana, Aug. 17 (AP)—Its principal spirits behind bars, Cuba's week-old revolution was viewed by the government today as nearing the stage of a lost cause.

President Gerardo Machado concentrated his attention and armed forces on Santa Clara Province, where vestiges of resistance lingered. He will spend two or three days more there, using his influence to have the insurgents lay down their arms.

In Santa Clara Col. Aurelio Hevia and Col. Roberto Mendez, two old soldiers of the Army of Liberation, are reported still to be in the field. The insurgents say the revolution will not be over until all are dead or captured, or until Machado resigns.

Higher Rates on Iron Ore Scored

Washington, Aug. 17 (AP)—Testimony that increased freight rates on iron ore would be "rank discrimination" in favor of the United States Steel Corp. and furnaces on the Great Lakes over the inland producers were presented to the Interstate Commerce Commission today by the Jones & Laughlin Steel Corp. of Pittsburgh.

Carlsbad, Czechoslovakia, Aug. 17 (AP)—Complete rest was the doctor's prescription today for New York's restive mayor, James J. Walker, who arrived yesterday to take the "health cure."

One detail of the mayor's "cure" is a masseur who is scheduled to appear every afternoon. The doctor especially told the mayor to abstain from smoking, and today he cut it down to two cigarettes.

Mayor Walker went to bed early—at 10:30—and this will be his bedtime for the ten days he expects to stay in Carlsbad. His rising time will be 10 o'clock.

MARTIAL LAW IN TEXAS FIELDS

Austin, Tex., Aug. 17 (AP)—Gov. Ross S. Sterling declared martial law in the East Texas oil field at 6 o'clock this morning and ordered all producing wells shut down.

The governor acted to prevent depletion of the resources of the vast field while the State Railroad Commission, Texas Oil Regulation body, put into action the oil conservation measure passed last week by the Legislature.

Gov. Sterling said the commission would need a week or two to do this. Some oil men said 20 days would be required. The field's overproduction is generally blamed by oil men for unsettling the industry and depressing prices.

The military zone as outlined by the governor included four counties—Rusk, Gregg, Smith, and Upshur—the area covering 2815 square miles. There are approximately 1600 producing wells in the field with a recent daily average production of about 750,000 barrels.

Hydrator

works wonders

What wonders the Frigidaire Hydrator works with wilted greens and languid vegetables!

Celery that has given up the ghost, so to speak, stands up like a Grenadier after a sojourn in the cold-moist magic of the Hydrator!

Lettuce that has lain down to die comes from its dewy, frosty depths crisp and succulent and newly inviting!

In the Frigidaire Hydrator all sorts of fruits and vegetables and salad greens find and keep just-out-of-the-garden freshness.

In most Frigidaire models the Hydrator is conveniently suspended so that food may be stored under and around it—it occupies that just-under-the-shelf space that is usually wasted.

The Frigidaire Hydrator to keep and restore garden-fresh crispness to fruits and vegetables is one of the many outstanding advantages of Frigidaire Advanced Refrigeration. There are many others. May Christie

A PERFECT DAY IN NEW YORK!

And how one does appreciate the lure of old Manhattan "taken on the wing"... passing through but for a day on your way to some summer resort...

What if the streets are "up" and detours are in vogue... What if they are dynamiting the foundations of a new building next door to my apartment on Park ave. as I write this column...!

MAY CHRISTIE

Even in the middle of August, with everybody away, New York is fascinating. Especially if you know you're leaving town again within an hour or two... for long days by the ocean.

Bright Boys Touring Italy

My day in New York... (which has an Italian flavor running through it, if you'll notice...!)... started with a postcard penned by Mr. Bradley Kelly, popular young bachelor, who is the guiding star of the Six Brightest Boys, who won the National Intelligence Test, of the Central Press Association. These small lads are being rewarded for their acumen by a tour through the Land of Mussolini at this moment...

They're having a grand time... the Italian Tourist Bureau, directed by Romolo Angelone of the Italian Embassy staff, is the host in Sunny Italy to these six lucky young gentlemen. The handsome and genial Mr. Bradley Kelly, who is accompanying them from the U. S. A. throughout their trip, is a well-known newspaperman... traveler... and the prince of a good fellow!

Mrs. Francis Gallatin of East 76th st. ran in yesterday morning to have a little chat with me on her way to Oyster Bay, L. I., where she is visiting friends.

Days at Southampton

The blonde Dorothy and her husband spent a few days in Southampton recently, with Mr. James Lawrence Breese, at his delightful "Breese-In" cottage. He is a cousin of Mr. Francis Gallatin... and entertained us in Southampton.

"We're paying a lot of visits here and there this summer, which makes it more varied than staying in any one place for the season," said Dorothy. "We were at East Hampton not long ago, at my husband's mother's old home there. We were at Mamaroneck previous to that, and have spent plenty of week-ends at the various Beach clubs."

I met Mrs. Winthrop Sears, a pretty blonde bride-of-two-months, at a luncheon. Her husband is a cousin of the rich and athletically-minded Miss Eleanor Sears of Boston.

Mrs. Winthrop Sears... the charming Peggy... was previous to her marriage Mrs. Ashford Rollins of Washington.

She and her good-looking husband are going to live in one of those tall new apartment-buildings that overhang the East River (and what a gorgeous view she'll have!) on E. 52d st.

She is a great friend of Mrs. Edward T. Griffith of upper 5th ave. and of Mrs. Rob Roy Converse... both of whom I like very much, too.

In Artist's Studio

A couple of hours after my luncheon party (that well-known hectic shopping—in-a-mad-rush being accomplished)... I dropped in at Miss Renee Thornton's new studio on E. 50th st., for tea!

It's a dee-vine place, and forms just the right setting for its hostess' Titian beauty. The walls and ceiling are of antique gold... the hangings deep blue with an oriental design... and the chairs and divans black-and-gold.

There were several artists there when I arrived, and one or two Italian noblemen including the blond Duke Fabio Carafa d'Andria, of Naples.

Whose mother, the Duchess d'Andria, one of the famous family of the Medici, was lady-in-waiting to the Queen of Italy when the later was princess.

And whose father was Master of Ceremonies to the King of Italy when the King was prince too.

The d'Andria family is very old... and of high religious background.

Splendid Singer

I have known her for some time, and gone to many of her musical parties which we thoroughly enjoyed.

Never have I seen her look so well, so happy and vivacious as she did yesterday afternoon.

At night I dined with friends in that spot beloved of debutantes and their swains, the Mona Lisa Club, off Fifth ave., in the Fifties...

Whose decorations and atmosphere really do make you feel as though you were in Europe!

There's a Venetian room, with waterways... and a French room, whose walls are cleverly painted to represent sidewalk scenes in the Grand boulevard of gay Paris.

There's a Cuban band, too, if you want to dance... but we preferred the chintz-decorated room where that operatic songbird, popular around Mayfair, the handsome Mario Cozzi, warbles...

He has just come back from Cleveland, where he sang "Aida" and "Gioconda" before a huge audience in the Cleveland Stadium.

He is a young bachelor from Rome. I met him at heaps of parties up and down Park ave. and Fifth ave. in the spring and early summer.

PASSIONATE TANGO

He has a magnificent tenor voice that nearly lifts the roof—the air below it absolutely vibrates when he lets his voice out.

Murray Apreda, the well-known violinist, accompanied him, and also played several exquisite solos.

A passionate tango called "Torna Sorento"... and a heavenly melody called, in translation, "The Tango of the Roses"... was sung by Mario Cozzi with Apreda accompanying him on the violin.

Perhaps the loveliest song of all was that wanderlusting ditty that makes one want to pack one's bag at once and be off to far, strange and intriguing countries...

"On the Road to Mandalay," it's called...!

It was written by my brother's godfather-in-law... Mr. Rudyard Kipling...

Thus ended my Perfect Day in New York... with its high flavor of Italian...!

(And now I'm off for a grand week-end at Montauk Point... I shall be footing the light fantastic with partners in Gold Braid... three cheers for the Handsome Naval Officers...!)

Empress Lines in Nightgown

By Ann Arden

IT IS wonderful to see the night gowns coming back into their picturesque era. They are so flattering to the figure that they tempt the most tailored minded woman to buy one if only to see what she is going to look like when arrayed in it.

THEY ARE really more like evening dresses than they are like lingerie. They have straps over the shoulders, ruffles and pleatings put on at becoming angles and they are fitted enough to the lines of the form to give to the figure all of the sweetness that is its by natural right.

IF YOU would trace the inspiration for the charming nightrobe pictured you must delve into the historic costumes of the lovely Empress Eugenie. This reincarnation of an old ball gown brings the off-the-shoulder decolletage to the boudoir. It is demure with ruffles and baby blue ribbon.

TWO NARROW ruffles, edged in blue ribbon stress the round neckline, the second ruffle extending low over the shoulders. Tie belt of the chiffon marks the waistline. Very demure, and summery.

BOWS ARE so much in evidence that it is no surprise to find they are used more frequently than in the past for the ornamentation of lingerie. A great bow at the back of a new nightgown gives it the appearance of an evening frock. Wide ribbon shoulder straps tie in butterfly bows that perch on each shoulder. The fitted line is often effected by the addition of a belt of two-tone ribbon.

Honeymooners Homeward Bound

The Newlyweds are beginning to wend their devious ways back from Paris, London, Scotland, sunny Italy and all the other points that honeymooners usually touch at. We hear that several of these happy pairs happened on each other in various out of the way places and it was fun? Or perhaps they didn't care so much about it! Mr. and Mrs. Robert Jarvis Leonard (Edith Gray) have already settled in the senior Gray's summer place in Manchester for a short stay. Mr. and Mrs. Walcott B. Thompson (Helen Nichols) have been seen at various functions on the North Shore for two or three weeks now, so their welcome home from across the seas must have been a quiet one. It seems that in spite of the depression, the June brides and bridegrooms of this year of grace (?) are quite able to go as far and for as long as they wish. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rogers Bacon (Elizabeth Donham) are not returning here at the end of their wedding trip, but will settle down in Milwaukee. However, we shall see the charming "Beth" when she comes on in October to be a bridesmaid for Miss Betty Bird, who in turn was Mrs. Bacon's in June. Miss Bird, now enjoying the shooting on a Scottish moor with her father, Mr. Reginald W. Bird, of Commonwealth ave., and Framingham, will marry Mr. William C. Clark, also of Framingham. Mr. Clark is on his way to join them for a month of grouse-shooting before sailing back for their wedding. More of that anon!

Essex County Group to Exhibit Hounds

Dearest Anne:

I don't know when I've been so excited about Autumn fashions as I am this year. Everything takes you by surprise—the styles are all so revolutionary. The mode is full of new lines and we must learn them, if we are to be even in the annual Fall fashion drama. We have to change our very selves—the way we walk,—the way we do our hair, for there's no use trying to wear the new clothes, unless we become as feminine and graceful as possible. And the prices are so reasonable—really ridiculously low,—but let me tell you about my week. First of all,

New Fall Dresses

$2.75, $3.75, $5.75 and $6.75!

Fashion's Spotlight is focused on transparent velvets, satins, chiffons, and travel prints, as the last word for Fall, and the New York Dress Mfg. Co. has a most fascinating collection of the new Fall dresses, in the wanted materials and styles, for you to choose from. Better news still, they have some of their new frocks marked at $2.75 and $5.75 as well as those at their two famous prices of $3.75 and $6.75! Of course you know, Anne dear, that the New York Dress Mfg. Co specializes in selling sample dresses retail, at wholesale prices and less. Mostly less! Because they are samples—it is impossible to have all styles in all sizes. But they have a complete assortment in sizes 11 to 19—12 to 20—14½ to 26½—36 to 60. Remember, there are plenty of salesgirls to assist you, and 20 private dressing rooms. Refunds and exchanges within 5 days if the tag is not removed. The New York Dress Mfg. Co., 515 Washington street, 2nd Floor. Opp. R. H. White's have come legends of the lure of flawlessly perfect, creamy skin for which the storied beauties of Ancient Times were famous. Today, the possession of this essential feminine charm is within every woman's reach. With the tendency of the sun, wind and dust to roughen the skin and clog the pores, it is necessary to choose something which will cleanse, protect and beautify, all at the same time. Adala Beauty Lotion contains emollients that not only clear the pores, but soothe and soften the texture to velvety loveliness, giving it a pearly beauty that wins envious admiration. It is successful in treating tan, freckles, or any skin blemish. Adala Beauty Lotion is exquisitely perfumed, and, best news of all, is priced within the reach of anyone. A large bottle, 50c. Adala Drug Co. On sale at the S. S. Pierce stores—also drug stores.

Down Through the Centuries

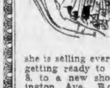
A Special Removal Sale

at the Show Shop, 453 Washington St., is attracting attention because so many girls know about this charming little shop that buys the most distinctive clothes worn a few times by fashion leaders, and sells them for almost nothing. Fine quality gowns, evening wraps, stunning frocks, coats, etc. Just now she is selling everything in stock, getting ready to move, on Sept. 8, to a new shop at 80 Huntington Ave., Boston. After that date Mrs. Kezar's shop will be full of fascinating fall suits, evening wraps, winter suits and coats—and evening gowns that look like new. The new shop will be open Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday nights. There are loads of lovely things in her shop now that you can pick up for a song and make over into snappy things for all occasions. Her prices have been greatly reduced to clear the shop immediately! The Show Shop, 453 Washington St., Dexter Bldg.



Vive le Italianos!

My dear, have you seen those exquisite Italian [illegible] at Filene's that the artists are all enthused about? You'll rave, Anne, when you go into their Gift Shop and find such a wide variety of high grade, real Italian glass for only 85 cents and $1.35! This is the first time such glass has ever been sold for a price so low and you will immediately recognize the delicate sea-green, breath-blown glassware that we coveted last year when it was marked $1.85 and $2.50! I understand that it was all blown in the little hill towns of Italy where every workman aspires to be the best glass blower in the village (you know skilled workers vie with each other) and every piece of glass shows the pride of its creator. You will want many of those lovely vases for "bread and butter" gifts to your week-end hostess, for gifts to brides, for shelf and mantel ornaments, or for hard, practical use while the flower garden is in all its glory. You will find this glassware in two groups—medium and large pieces—suitable for every purpose. Some are a deeper green than others, but all are neutral enough to harmonize with any color scheme in the room. Several pieces are especially designed for mantel and niche ornaments, others are intended for consoles. The designs include shapes like old wine bottles, odd jugs with handles, wide mouthed jars, shallow bowls and such a variety of unique pieces that you owe it to yourself to see these before the best are gone. Filene's Gift Shop, Franklin St. entrance.

New Fall Hats

If you are one of those losing sleep because you look like a "holy terror" in the new extreme hats, you are going to bless me for telling you about Griffin's. In their fall collection are the smartest and newest of Stetson's famous hats for women: perky, impudent little Gage hats; and other fascinating velvets and felts. To be sure their hats have the unmistakable Empress Eugenie lines—but their hats haven't lost all their crowns, or all their brims, because they were designed to be worn, and to flatter. You will love their delightful Tri-corne model, with the softening feathers. It is not extreme, but so truly smart because it embodies the newest lines so cleverly. Then, too, the ever fashion right Stetsons with brims—for any occasion, for any season, are always "right." Griffin's hats are priced most reasonably—$5.00 and up. Geo. L. Griffin & Son, Washington St., Millinery, 2nd floor.

And Now, Anne Dear

every week will be more thrilling than the last. The stores are full of new things, and more are always arriving. It is a time too, of bargains, with the August fur and diamond sales, and the markdowns on all summer merchandise. We had better have tea soon, Anne, and make a tour of the shops, for now is the time to buy if you would save dollars. The shop windows are more attractive and tempting than ever—and I'm warning you, it will take a lot of will power to resist buying everything you see—but we simply must start on our Fall wardrobe—so why not now? More news next week—so watch for my letter Monday.

Devotedly,

Priscilla

FIRST NOMINATIONS FOR U. S. TITLES

—By Gilbert Seldes—

I PROMISED to issue a preliminary list of American noblemen, candidates for the new aristocracy. In case the reader had eye-strain, or just didn't read the article, I summarize the purposes of this new system of nobility. Basically, it is intended to supply something beside work and money as a standard of measurement in America, to provide a new goal for the successful, so that after they have done their best work, they will be content to lie down, secure in the knowledge that, titled and ennobled, they will retain the respect of the community.

GILBERT SELDES

Titles of nobility will, therefore, go to two classes of people: Those who have done good work and should be encouraged to continue, and those who have finished doing good work and should be encouraged to stop. I will not be tricked into saying which is which on the following list.

Count Capone of Chicago

Since he is still at liberty and our most important citizen, let us start with Al Capone, placed in nominaion for the principal title of Count of Chicago, with Baron of Beer as an additional family name to be held by his eldest son, or chief lieutenant, until such time as the present title holder is disqualified.

Calvin Coolidge, Duke of Massachusetts and Lord High Master of Constabulary in the Marches of Boston.

A. Lawrence Lowell, Viscount Dedham. (Title disputed by Judge Webster Thayer.)

The Marquess Cabell of Poicteame.

Baron Durante of Dover.

Sir Theodore Dreiser, Bart.

Lord Lindbergh.

His Grace, the Duke of Pocantico, Baron of Soconyland.

Sir William F. Doyle, Master of Horse.

Sir Walter Disney.

The Marquess Gatti-Cassazza, of the Metropolitan.

Earl Zukor, of Hollywood.

Lord Mellon, of Pittsburgh.

Sir Julius Klein.

Freiherr Henry Mencken, von und zu Baltimore.

Viscount Dearborn and Detroit.

King Ruth of Swat (title not permanent).

As a Hall of Fame and as a Hall of Oblivion, the titled aristocracy seems a necessary part of American life.

Good Story—Bad Ending

The wrongest conclusion I have encountered in a long while is at the end of a story about an English schoolboy. He developed an interest in fossils; the school encouraged him and even helped him to build a small museum of fossils to which the other boys contributed. And now, says the story triumphantly, he is a well-known authority on the subject and has a good job in a London museum.

To me the story would have point and significance only if the boy had grown up to be a manufacturer of soap and still, at the age of fifty, found himself interested and entertained by his fossils. It is well enough to encourage collegians to discover their natural bent; but the whole point of an education ought to be the creation of non-profitable interests.

The final years of high school for most people, and the collegiate years for nearly all students, are the last opportunity to hear about things which will not bring in dollars and cents. After we are "educated" we cannot read that the inhabitants of Kamchatka walk on their hands without speculating on the chance of selling them leather gloves; if we hear of a Titian selling for a quarter of a million dollars, we think of our own bank accounts, and not of the profitless beauty of the painting; we have become practical.

Other Men's Ideas

From "New Russia's Primer," by M. Ilyin; Houghton Mifflin:

Man places an instrument in the iron hand of a machine and orders the machine to work.

Foreign capitalists are not pleased with our plans; they would like to hamper us in every possible way. Why do they sell us machines at all? Only because they need buyers, because they need to dispose of their goods. "It is difficult," says Ford, the American millionaire, "to refuse today's for tomorrow's dollar."

Man has only two hands. To a machine we can give as many hands as we wish.

The life of a machine is shorter than that of a human being. At 25 years of age a boiler is an old man. The little old men must resign! We shall melt them up in our furnaces. And they will come out new boilers, sound and strong.

A machine is not a stick of chewing-gum. You cannot drop a coin into a slot and expect a finished machine to jump out.

A tractor is not a trinket. It is composed of 5000 separate parts.

A piece of bread is not simply a piece of bread, but a charge of energy, several hours of concentrated labor of hands, feet or brain.

To creat oases in deserts, to transfer forests from one place to another, to convert swamps into fields—such are the great tasks which the Five-Year Plan sets before us.

In America the machine changes a free man into a slave. This ought not to be permitted. Machines must belong to society and not to individuals....

We must organise life so that not merely certain lucky ones, but all may be able to feel the joy of living.

"You sweep and you sweep and you sweep, and what the heck do you get? —more dirt."

Paris' Fair

—By Bruno Lessing—

PARIS—A first visit to the Colonial Exposition. It's such a vast affair—in the sense that it covers so much ground—that it is hardly fair to judge it after only one visit. The innumerable buildings are scattered about the forest of Vincennes and the trees hide one from another.

You miss the effect of the whole. It must look much more impressive from an airplane.

To one who has seen many international expositions the first impression is disappointing. You see innumerable booths where they sell the same kind of junk that you find at Coney Island and on the boardwalk at Atlantic City. Loud speakers everywhere rehashing the same musical stuff that your neighbor plays on his phonograph every night.

Here and there you hear the wail of Oriental music from some of France's colonies—cootchy-cootchy stuff such as they had at the Chicago exposition and the Buffalo exposition and the St. Louis exposition and the San Francisco exposition, many years ago.

As you ride through the grounds to survey the buildings from the outside your impressions—like most impressions—depend largely upon where you've been and what you've seen.

If you have travelled in Oriental countries or have seen many photographs of Oriental villages and buildings you do not get the same kick out of these reproductions that you would if they were new to your consciousness.

There is little novelty or originality in the first impression.

The reproduction of Mount Vernon makes a big hit, even though its architecture is out of all harmony with the exotic note of the exposition. It seems so reposeful and simple in the midst of the Oriental riot.

The French like it, I guess, because it suggests the days when France and the United States were pals—"Washington, we are here!" But you can't expect an American to enthuse over it when he's got the original at home.

The reproduction of the Temple of Angkor in Indo-China is the show piece of the exposition. It looks just like the photographs of the original. The first one I ever saw was in my geography book in school.

But, as I said, it isn't fair to judge a big thing like this by a first impression. I'm going again to see what they've got inside the buildings. The catalogue says, "machinery, domestic appliances, mineral and agricultural products" and all that sort of thing. Which isn't a thrilling outlook.

City Glimpses

The Zoo

Wild animals locked in the zoo,
It really seems to me,
Enjoy a much more pleasant life,
And much more privacy
Than do their brothers roaming free
The jungle, shine or rain.
Since movies have invaded all
That African domain!
For in the zoo, you know,
They're really excellently fed,
And they have lots of straw
To make a nice and cosy bed,
And looking at the visitors
As through the bars they stare
Provides such bright diversion
For the animals up there!

Youth Grows Dreary

—By Agnes Smith—

I AM GLAD that I am not 18 years old. Anyone—man or woman—who sighs for youth and young love must have a short memory.

The other night I went to a dance—or, rather I looked on at a dance. It was a summer hotel affair—an open competition for steppers of all ages. Near me on the veranda a group of very young people formed a circle of chairs for their between-dances parking space. Nice young people, too, because it is no longer proper for girls and boys to be improper.

In New York, after you are married, you never see any young people. New York ships its youth away to schools or else it segregates the immature in a set apart, supposedly to protect the young from the callous older generation, but really to guard sensitive adults against the young.

Desperate Gayety

So I watched the boys and girls having what they, in their innocence, probably called a good time. It was a dreary desperate attempt at gaiety.

In the first place, the girls looked as though they had been hastily thrust into their mothers' dresses. The necklines of the gowns didn't coincide with the necklines of their bathing suits. Moreover they were made up, not with any regard to the possibilities of their own faces, but in imitation of the currently popular Hollywood masks. Their frank faces were sketchily done over to suggest sullen suffering and slumbering fire under a blanket of snow.

As for the boys they looked younger than the girls and more helpless and pathetic. When boys and girls of the same age flock together, the boys always are pitifully outmatched.

The little group of merrymakers seemed to be dominated by an invisible censor. Their conduct appeared to be guided by some implicit understanding among themselves. The censor told them that they must dance slowly and take short steps; that they must dance coldly and without enthusiasm—and that the boys must take turns inviting the girls so all would come out even at the end of the evening.

When Words Fail

The censor also must have decreed that there was to be no conversation; only odd, uneasy, jerky talk, with sudden, abrupt silences and quick flurries of spurious merriment. The boys, obviously, were forbidden to say much of anything because the girls did all the talking and all the laughing. And worked hard at it, too.

According to their lights, they were enjoying themselves. And I thought of the gay dances of my school days and remembered, truthfully and unromantically, how much misery was mixed in with the pleasure.

At eighteen, one must conform; one must wear the right dress and dance the right dances, or else be pushed aside as eccentric. At eighten, it is important who dances with whom and who sits out a dance with whom. It is essential, too, for girls to keep the talk going, frantically and at all costs, without actually ever saying anything.

I realized, too, that young people do not change at all. The conversation I heard on the veranda from the 18-year-olds of 1931 might have been written years ago by Booth Tarkington. And, although the boys and girls wore expensive clothes and had a certain superficial worldliness, the entire gathering might have been transplanted to a church social at Yahoo Center.

Fun Grows Older

Older men and women (it isn't polite to call them middle-aged) have all the fun. On the dance floor those fat and forty were dancing unashamed in their own way. Some were bouncing because bouncing came naturally to them. And some were leaping because they liked to leap. And all of them were free from Rudy Vallee slow-motion complex.

When a man has passed 30, he has achieved independence. He no longer dances as though he were trying to win a cup. He can improvise, if he wants to, and either accept the new steps or cling to the footwork he mastered as a youth.

And he isn't afraid to talk, whether he has anything to talk about, or not.

As for the woman who is married and getting along, she has given up trying to look like a movie star and uses all her skill in making the most of her own looks.

She has learned to accept all sorts of dancing and all sorts of conversation.

PRESIDENT OF CHINA AT BIER OF MRS. SOONG

Shanghai, Aug. 17—China's "first and richest family"—the Soongs—held one of their rare reunions today for the funeral of the mother, Mme. K. T. Soong, "mother-in-law" of the Chinese revolution.

Mme. Soong died in Tsingtao, July 23, shortly after the attempted assassination here of her son, T. V. Soong, vice chairman and finance minister of the Nationalist government.

The circle was complete today with arrival of Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, head of the Nationalist government. Chiag Kai-Shek is a son-in-law.

ALL DISTINGUISHED.

One daughter is Mme. Sun Yat-Sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese republic. Another is Mme. H. H. Kung, wife of the Nationalist minister of industry. Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, is the third daughter. The sons are T. V. Soong, finance minister, and T. L. Soong and T. N. Soong, who hold minor government positions.

EDUCATED IN U. S.

All six were educated in America, the sons at Harvard, two of the daughters at Wellesley and the other at Wesleyan University, Macon, Ga. Their father died in 1928.

Today's rites included a Christian service. Mme Soong, a life-long Christian, reared her six children in that faith and it was largely under her influence that Chiang Kai-Shek last year was baptized in the Methodist Episcopal church, South.

Plant No Cotton in '32, Says Gov. Long

New Orleans, Aug. 17 (AP)—Governor Huey P. Long of Louisiana, has entered the South's battle against over-production of cotton by proposing that the cotton-growing states pass laws against the raising of a single bale in 1932.

Governor Long is awaiting response to telegrams sent last night proposing a meeting in New Orleans next Friday to prepare the way for such legislation.

Trooper is 102

ADD RACKETS

He's one of the town's better-known newspapermen, and he also turns out swell verse—verse that has been printed in some of our best magazines. The other day he got a letter from a publishing house. They were preparing an anthology of American verse, they said in the letter, and they had before them several specimens of his poetry. It was good poetry, they said; it was excellent. In fact, it was so good that they felt that their anthology would be incomplete if he didn't give them permission to publish it.

By this time our young poet laureate was so pleased with himself that he was ready to burst. Then he started to read the last paragraph. Wouldn't he please, they asked, allow them to include the poems in their book. They would be overjoyed to do so, and all that they would ask in return would be that he send 'em a check for $20 in return for which he would receive six (count 'em), copies of the anthology when it was published.

PUBLIC OPINION CALLED 'MYTH'

Williamstown, Aug. 17 (INS)—Characterizing political rallies and mass meetings as "carefully staged dramatic productions of no value in determining the opinions of every voter," Arthur N. Holcomb of Harvard today branded public opinion as a means of democratic control, a "myth."

His address at the Institute of Politics' round table on "The Future of Democracy," was a contradiction of views expressed by Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War.

Both Baker and M. C. Rorty, former vice-president of the International Telephone & Telegraph Co., had previously upheld public opinion as the forerunner of governmental action in most of the recent decisions of policy.

ENGLAND FACES FATEFUL WEEK ON DEFICIT

London, Aug. 17 (AP)—England was viewed today by qualified observers as facing one of the most fateful weeks in her recent history—possibly the most fateful since the World War.

Her problem now is to defend the pound sterling. Every financial expert agrees this can be done only by banishing the specter of a $600,000,000 deficit in next year's budget.

Prime Minister MacDonald left Lossiemouth, Scotland, last night and the "Big Five" of the Cabinet is meeting today to decide what sweeping new economies and what new sources of revenue must be evolved.

There will be a meeting of the full Cabinet Wednesday and the government's declaration of policy is expected either at the end of the day or on the following day.

Rumors of the government's intentions the last few days have included a 10 per cent duty on all imports, compulsory conversion of war bonds, a great call to the nation to cut salaries, a 1 per cent tax on all fixed income-bearing investments, and sweeping economies in the administrative services.

$34,758,379 in Jobs Contracts Let

Washington, Aug. 17 (AP)—Public works contracts aggregating $34,758,379 were reported today to the President's emergency committee for employment to have been awarded last week.

Fred C. Croxton, acting chairman, said the addition brought the total contract awards since December 1, 1930, to $2,175,006,339.

SAVINGS in this sale are the most astounding on record for two reasons: One is because furniture prices are at the lowest level in 16 years. The other is because operating changes in this business have decided us to make the most sweeping, drastic reductions ever known, including every item in our desirable stocks of furniture, rugs, drapery goods, and lamps. THE LOVES OF CHARLIE CHAPLIN

King of Laughs and World's Unluckiest Lover

(Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American)

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

(Socially, Charlie Chaplin ranks among the first in filmdom's mythical blue book. His pictures, virtually every one of them, have been an international success. If Charlie had achieved such success with his women as he has with his films, he wouldn't bear the title today of "The world's unluckiest lover.)

CHAPTER 13

Angry with himself for being tricked into a publicity stunt that would further Claire Windsor's film career, Charlie dropped the placid and cool Claire like a "hot cake" and turned to Clare Sheridan, English author and sculptress, for solace.

He centered all his interest on her. And they, too, began taking long strolls together.

Clare Sheridan was a woman completely outside the type of film celebrities. She was a celebrity, but an intellectual figure of national and international repute. She was a sculptress and a personage of considerable importance.

Charlie enjoyed a mental companionship with the woman. Together they enjoyed the great out-of-doors. They even had space cleared in the Hollywood mountains and erected tents, where with Mrs. Sheridan's nine-year-old child, they spent many days camping.

AN ARDENT CAMPER

Charlie was an ardent camper. He loved the call of the woods. He was inspired by tramps through the California hills. Charlie, although few realize it, is an enthusiastic nature lover.

Charlie, in company with Mrs. Sheridan, his son, his secretary, Tom Harrington, a chauffeur and a Japanese chef, would leave Hollywood and spend the week-end in the Ventura mountains hunting and fishing.

Those sports gave Charlie the greatest delight.

But their friendship didn't last very long, for Mrs. Sheridan returned to London. And she said good-bye to Charlie just about the time beautiful Lila Lee, who later was married to and divorced from James Kirkwood, appeared on the scene.

Charlie "plunged head over heels in love" with her at once. He took her to the writer's banquet, given for Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks. He took her to previews of pictures and he took her mother driving.

What better indication of Charlie's sincerity in his affection for Lila could have been asked?

Charlie pleased Lila's mother in the hope of making a conquest with the daughter.

But apparently their friendship devolved into nothing more than platonic friendship and they have since remained just "old-time comrades."

"Romances of the type Charlie enjoyed with Lila Lee and many others have been numerous," his friend and associate told me. "He has had fly-by-night affairs with this woman and that, none of which ever meant anything to him."

And just such a friendship Charlie enjoyed with Anna Q. Nilsson, glittering blonde, who, too, fluttered in for a while, distracted the film king's attention and then fluttered away again.

TRIED THEM ALL

Of such love interludes, Charlie's life was replete. He had more such passing affairs than any man in Hollywood. He tried them all, as they say, but none suited the temperament of the artistic Charlie.

If she had beauty, she lacked temperament. If she had temperament, she lacked understanding. If she had understanding, she lacked femininity. Always something was missing, something that Charlie demanded in the woman of his dreams.

For with it all, Charlie wanted a home and children.

And so Charlie flitted from the arms of one woman to the arms of another, in his mad quest for the all-possessing woman.

When Charlie wasn't enamored of some woman, he went into seclusion into the hills, where he communed with nature; where he could read by the hours in solitude and peaceful understanding.

Or Charlie would seek recourse to his violin. Charlie is an expert violinist, it is said. Although he doesn't play publicly, his most intimate of friends have heard him strain his violin in melodious sweetness.

When Charlie ceased to have Edna Purviance to turn to, he had his violin, and many were the occasion he sought cheer and stimulation in its note.

With the return to London of Mrs. Sheridan, with the passing of his affection of Lila Lee and with the fading out of Anna Q. Nilsson, Charlie was foot-loose.

No one woman was gossiped about as Charlie's love light. No one woman claims on either his heart or his head or his attention.

GETS SAD NEWS

There was no woman that Charlie loved enough to worship at her shrine.

But sad news reached the comedian. Sad news from New York.

A girl he once admired and whose intellectuality he praised committed suicide. She took gas.

With Florence Deshon, screen actress, and Max Eastman, Chaplin visited May Collins' bungalow soirees.

Florence died by gas in a room in her house. And immediately Hollywood said that love affairs with Charlie Chaplin and Eastman were echoed in her death.

Miss Deshon had been in the film colony but a short time and it was said that Chaplin paid her marked attention. Their friendship was renewed when Chaplin visited New York after the girl's return to the Big City when Eastman threw a party for Chaplin in Greenwich Village.

It was also said that Charlie's ardent court of Miss Deshon caused a rift in the long friendship between the film actress and the radical poet and author, editor of the Liberator. Charlie considered Max Eastman one of his best friends. Of him he said:

"He is a charming and sympathetic fellow who thinks." Such people interested Chaplin.

Chaplin, of course, denied that he was ever engaged to Miss Deshon, although he admitted he had been very friendly with her.

Her suicide broke him up for a spell. It cast a strange feeling over the king of fun-making.

It was a tragedy of womanhood he never expected. And although he had nothing to do with the suicide, however, left him bewildered.

It was just at this time that Peggy Hopkins Joyce, the queen of women, arrived in Hollywood.

Peggy had met Charlie before, some years previous. They were, of course, again to meet. And Charlie was again to fall deeply, madly, in love with her.

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The history making flight of the Graf Zeppelin into the Polar ice fields is continued in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News at Loew's State, in a series of remarkable pictures. The Hearst Metrotone operator was the only cameraman aboard, and he photographed every angle of the adventurous expedition. The great airship is shown keeping a rendezvous with the Russian ice-breaker Malygin, where Commander Nobile exchanged greetings with Lincoln Ellsworth, the American explorer who accompanied him on the ill-fated Polar flight which ended in disaster.

Bad news for rum runners is conveyed in pictures showing the mobilization of the Coast Guard off Staten Island, N. Y., in preparation for a new ocean offensive. The novel sport of balloon jumping has been introduced at Cleveland, O., and the youngsters are among the most ardent followers. "Nature sledding" is the latest rage at Mt. Rainier, Wash. An exhibition of African dancing by warriors from the Sudan and Dahomey gives Parisians a thrill at the French Colonial Fair.

JAMES DUNN NEW PARTNER FOR JANET GAYNOR

Bud De Sylva's "Heart Free" Next Picture for Star

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

[illegible]

Los Angeles, Aug. 17—There is no denying Winfield Sheehan is intent on building James Dunn. Winnie is a smart showman and he has never forgotten the popularity the Janet Gaynor-Charlie Farrell team enjoyed throughout the country.

Louella O. Parsons

Now he is going to team James Dunn with Janet Gaynor. Their first appearance will be in "Heart Free," a Bud De Sylva vehicle, to be directed by David Butler. Please don't confuse this with "Delicious," for "Delicious" is George Gershwin's contribution to Fox for Miss Gaynor. And don't confuse it with "Heartbreak," starring Charles Farrell.

Winnie knows what the public wants, and he believes in a short time there will be just as great a demand for the Janet Gaynor-James Dunn pictures as there was when Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell were the sweethearts of the world.

I cornered Irving Thalberg in his modernistic office, taking in the effect of this new type of office while we talked. Someway you associate a more sombre office with this hard-working young man. Yet this is one modernistic office I like. It's gay but at the same time restful. Irving had just had the first outline of Frederick Lonsdale's story given him. "Salute," Mr. Lonsdale is calling it and it's a love story. While Irving won't say positively for whom the story is being written I have an idea it will be one of Norma Shearer's vehicles. She played in "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," one of Lonsdale's most successful comedies, and from another source I heard the English playwright is anxious to have Miss Shearer as the heroine of his first original Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer talkie.

The first time the name Warner Fabian flashed on the screen was the significant occasion when Colleen Moore appeared in "Flaming Youth." With the Fabian concoction started Colleen's enormous popularity. The story of this author is interesting. Samuel Adams by name, author of more dignified literature, wagered he could write a best seller under a nom de plume. "Flaming Youth" was the result and it put this stranger right in the best seller class, and still means popular entertainment. "Men in Her Life," purchased by Columbia, is one of these Fabian stories. Lois Moran and Charles Bickford have been selected by Harry Cohn to visualize the characters, with William Beaudine in the role of director.

Fall Work Starts

School will soon be in session. The bell will ring and the players who have been summering at Santa Monica, Malibu and elsewhere will return to work. Plans at all the studios are underway. One of Universal's first fall productions will be "Law and Order," by W. R. Burnett. Burnett is the author who wrote "Little Caesar," "The Iron Man" and other well known books. At Radio "Legal in Paris," an original by Keene Thompson, is being planned. John Halliday who in his youth was the answer to every maiden's prayer and who is still somewhat of a hot shot with the Hollywood gals, has an important role; he talks with an English accent and looks like the hero in an English novel.

Seen and Heard

As long ago as last Spring, when I interviewed Richard Dix over the radio, there were rumors of a new Dix romance. In fact, Dix mentioned a society girl for whom he had a fondness. I thought it was just a perennial Dix engagement but one of the movie star's close friends says that this time Richard means business. Reports from Renee Adoree, who is convalescing in Arizona, are good. Renee weighed 84 pounds when she went into the Sanitarium. She now weighs more than 100. She is happy, hopeful and improving each day. Turmites drove the Douglas Fairbanks, Jrs. to the Ambassador. Joan was seen getting in and out of her car at this hotel and a nice little rumor sprang up that the young Fairbanks were separated.

I have to say a man can keep a secret. I talked with Joseph Sherman Friday afternoon and he said that he and Mary Doran had no plans for their marriage. Then Saturday came a telegram from Joe with the happy tidings that he and Mary had taken the big step in San Diego. Here's all sorts of good wishes to Joseph McGullicuddy and the fair Mary. They are two nice people and we hope they will find nothing but happiness. Joe is one of my favorite press agents and authors. A square guy who plays the game right. Mary is a talented young actress with a future—and well, these two should be happy. My only regret is that they didn't get married in my garden—as we planned.

Snapshots of Hollywood

MARGUERITE CLAYTON, old-time essanay actress, in Hollywood with a new husband. MRS. BROKAW, assistant editor of Vanity Fair, in town getting photographs of motion picture folk. Admiring eyes cast on SALL BLANE, who wore a red and white gingham frock at the Brown Derby at luncheon. JUNE COLLYER, Hollywood's newest bride, lunching with her father and mother at the Embassy. HELEN HAYES glimpsed with a group of friends. FRANCES DEE at the Brown Derby getting many compliments for her work in "An American Tragedy." KATHRYN CRAWFORD being besieged with requests to tell how she got thin. MRS. EDWARD ROBINSON entertaining her young daughter. Reports from the cast are favorable about EDDIE ROBINSON'S vaudeville act. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

'Craziest' Man at Scollay

Harry Howard, known as the "craziest comedian in show-business," heads the seven-act bill at the Scollay. Howard has a company of four to assist him in his clowning.

Also on this new bill is Jack McBride, who presents "What Next."

A singing, dancing, musical act, presented by Verna Hawerth and company called "On Your Toes," brings a company of seven entertainers with special scenery and costumes.

Stage Star in Beacon Film

Eddie Dowling wrote, directed and acted in "Honeymoon Lane" on the stage and now appears in the same production on the screen, at the Publix Beacon and Modern. "Honeymoon Lane" has been altered slightly as to time, place, action and personnel.

Dowling is seen as the employe in a luxurious gambling hall operated by Noah Beery. June Collyer, Noah's niece, is in love with Eddie, and Beery tries to upset the romance by accusing Eddie of crookedness. Dowling leaves in disgrace and goes to the brokendown hotel of Mary Carr, who gives him a job as manager. By exploiting Mother Carr's famous pies, Eddie manages to build up a clientele for her place.

Meanwhile, June has learned the truth about Eddie and their romance is mended. Good luck comes in the visit of a European king who stops at Eddie's hotel incognito. Later, when Beery appears and tries to put Eddie into disfavor with Mother Carr, the king takes a hand and Beery is undone.

Olympia Film Among Best of Year

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

"Transatlantic," holding the screens at the Olympic and the Uptown, is a sterling picture, entertaining from beginning to end, and so ably directed that it stands a great chance of being one of the "best ten" films of this year.

Through the wizardry of Director William K. Howard, the photoplay establishes its swift tempo at the start and keeps it up to the end. The cameras play from all sorts of angles, all the tricks of the trade are brought into play, in addition to the borrowing of the best of the German technique. Thus "Transatlantic" becomes an outstanding photoplay in its being a sign that Hollywood at last is seeing the light—that fundamentally the director must say it with the cameras.

Howard subordinates his dialogue, as is proper. To the great credit of the makers of the movie, most of the conversation is bright and worth hearing. There is tremendous speed to the action; like a torrent it dashes on, and the onlooker is held thrilled, tense, often breathless at attention. This is the result of a rare technical treatment among American directors.

The story is enacted aboard an ocean liner. One finds an absconding banker, and then his wife, and also his "sweetie"; card sharps and other crooks. There are also honest folks. They all become involved sooner or later in a tangle of intrigue and crime.

It's a most entertaining story, made so by Howard's direction. A less able hand would have left us flat with nothing but poor melodrama. But this is Howard's film, his best production, and one forecasting bigger things from him.

The acting is so good that it seems the director's enthusiasm had been imparted to his players. Outstanding are Jean Hersholt, Edmund Lowe, John Halliday, Earl Foxe, Lois Moran, Greta Nissen and Myrna Loy.

But the triumph is Howard's. He has done a magnificent job in "Transatlantic." No fan should miss it.

Clara K. Young Back in Films

Admirers of Clara Kimball Young will be glad to note that they may see her again on the screen. She is the star of "Mother and Son," now at the Park. The story is apparently the result of the recent notoriety given Reno; divorce, jazzy living, society angles, are all done up in melodramatic fashion in this tale of life high and low.

Miss Young turns in a clever characterization, and sight of her will probably be welcome to thousands of fans. She has fair support in John Elliott, Bruce Warren, and Ernest Hilliard.

'High Stakes Diverting Film Fare

By HARRIS MORGAN

"High Stakes," RKO picture holding the feature place on the Keith-Boston screen, proves highly entertaining once it gets down to the brass tacks of its story. Through several reels it is over-dialogued; then Actor-Director Lowell Sherman gets into a real cinema stride and presents his story effectively.

Sherman adds to his laurels by the way he handles his role. He gives it the proper light comedy touch, and proves the best performer in the movie. Karen Morley is excellent. Mae Murray has the feminine and shines flashily in numerous gowns and negligees.

The stage show is classy throughout. There are two headliners, each one very clever, Kitty Doner and Boston's own Eddie Deas and his orchestra. Deas repeats his great hit scored at his first appearance on the same stage a year or so ago. Miss Doner turns in numerous clever male impersonations and goes over big.

There is excellence in the other acts. Nelson Clifford and Marie Marion in "Just Dumb," Johnny Berkes and Besta Wallace in a highly hilarious sketch, and Carrer, with many new tricks, help make the bill a topnotcher.

Reduced Fare Policy to Nantasket Continue

Frederic L. Lane, treasurer and general manager of the Nantasket Beach Steamboat Co., announced today that he will continue the reduced one-half fare rates to Nantasket Beach daily and Sunday, excepting Mondays, until Labor Day.

"I feel that in reducing our fares and permitting children under five free, we have pleased thousands who have sailed to Nantasket Beach in comfort and without the road hazards that many heretofore have encountered."

Bowdoin Square

Another high grade program is offered at the Bowdoin Square. Robert Montgomery is seen in "The Man in Possession." Helen Twelvetrees is seen in "A Woman of Experience." Cabaret night comes on Wednesday with extra acts.

Cooking Tip for Chops Supreme

From Martha Lee's Monday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB.

Sniff! sniff! What's that heavenly aroma coming from the Martha Lee Kitchen? Let's peek. Aha—company for lunch, and Martha's just "dishing up" the eats onto hot heatproof glass compartment plates.

Martha Lee

In the meat compartment there are two intriguing brown Pork Chops Supreme flanked with a thick slice of candied sweet potato and a generous serving of fresh string beans in cream, sprinkled with a dash of Parmesan cheese. There's a sprig of watercress to add color to a picture so inviting that we'd mortgage a generous slice of next week's salary to be asked to sit down and share the feast.

Don't get the idea that pork is only a cool weather meat.

This lovely tender New England Fresh Dressed Pork is just as economical, delicious and wholesome on the hottest hot day as it is on the coldest cold day, especially if you cook it carefully.

CLOSELY TRIMMED

These chops are of young, deliciously tender pork closely trimmed to avoid any waste and delivered to your dealer fresh daily. I can't say too much about the importance of freshness in pork.

Just as eggs, milk, bread, green peas and other vegetables are best only when strictly fresh so it is with pork, and nothing could possibly be fresher than this New England Fresh Dressed Pork. You certainly can "taste the difference."

To prepare the Chops Supreme, season them first with salt and pepper and perhaps a dash of onion salt and put them on the stove in a hot heavy frying pan without any fat, for just a few minutes, to brown on the bottom.

Then they can go into your oven glass dish upside down, with the brown side on top, and mounted on toast points if you want to extend the meat flavor economically. Cover the chops with a layer of dressing made of moistened bread crumbs and your favorite seasoning and spread with a layer of onions fried to a delicate cream color.

To make the dish even more attractive put a circle of green pepper on top of the stuffing and pile the onions in this little fence. Put the chops back in the oven for about five minutes to finish cooking. This is just one of the many ways to serve these deliciously freshly fresh pork chops.

POTATO RECIPE

For the Candied Sweet Potatoes, melt 3 tbsps. of butter in a heavy pan. Add 4 tbsps. of light brown sugar and stir until dissolved. Lay in thick slices of cold boiled sweet potato and turn until they are well covered with syrup. Cook slowly, turning frequently, until the potatoes are covered with a rich candy coating. This will take about 15 minutes. Watch carefully that they don't burn.

Here's another delicious way to serve pork chops in French Style. For this recipe 6 pork chops are sprinkled with flour and seasoned with salt and pepper. Brown them on both sides in a very little fat in a heavy pan. Then reduce the heat and cook for about 30 minutes.

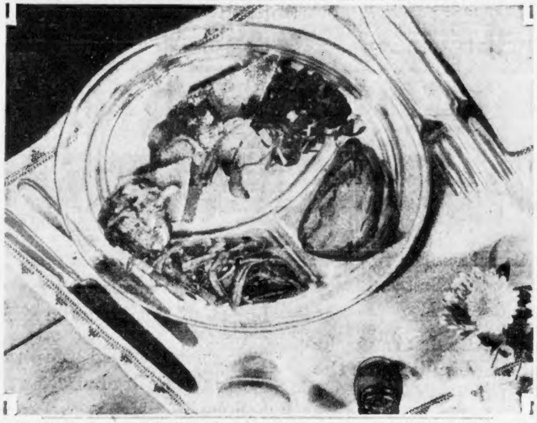
Arrange a layer of cooked macaroni elbows in a deep glass baking dish and cover with the chops. Add one beaten egg yolk to one cup of medium-thin white sauce and pour over the meat.

Sprinkle over with grated cheese and place under the broiler flame or in a hot oven until the cheese is melted. A layer of hot cooked spinach can be used in place of the macaroni, if you wish.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

ONE DISH DINNER OFFERS SPECIAL APPEAL



Try this delicious one-dish-dinner of tender pork chops, grilled sweet potatoes and string beans in cream. It not only is pleasing to the eye but should delight the palate.

Chowder Saves Lonely Dad

"Everyone was out when I got home," wrote Dad to Mother in Vermont. "But I found a can of that pet fish chowder of yours and some crackers and had a bang-up, good supper all by myself. As long as you always keep that chowder on the shelf, you needn't worry about my going hungry. It sure is good—in fact, I think it's a darned sight better than the so-called "home-made" kind that's usually a sad pale blue with a few spare bones lying in wait for a hiding place in your gullet."

CAPT. JIM'S RECIPE

Members of the Martha Lee Women's Club won't have to ask what kind of chowder Dad is talking about—most of them have sampled it in the Martha Lee Cooking School.

They know it's made way down in Maine from Captain Jim's famous formula for haddock chowder—the marvelous chowder he brews in the old three-legged kettle when there's an outing up beautiful Quoddy Bay. This canned chowder, like Captain Jim's, is made of the finest Aroostook potatoes and onions, and deep, cold water fish caught just off the plant, cleaned in running water, and prepared as fast as the boats come in. This dandy chowder is rich and flavorful, a delicious, healthful food made in the right way, and then quickly sealed in a metal jacket waiting for you any time you want it—and that's sure to be often once you get acquainted with it.

GOOD FOR CHILDREN

Let the children enjoy it, too—it's ideal for their lunches or suppers—not too heavy but satisfying and very nourishing.

Personally, I don't see any reason for taking all the trouble to make a good fish chowder when I can get such a perfect one from my nearest grocer's. Do you?

Answers to Requests

M. E. C., 5 Curtis st., Salem: For squeaky shoes rub a little oil well into the soles, then stand them overnight in cold salt and water, using barely enough to cover the soles. Linseed oil or castor oil is also good; place the shoes over night in a dish with just enough oil to cover the soles. This latter is only for black shoes. —Mrs. Anna Somers, 388 Lexington st., Auburndale.

Rare Recipes Free to You

We've found a little gold mine in the store room of the Martha Lee Cooking School—a collection of recipes clipped from this column from time to time during the past few years, and pasted neatly on cards.

We've made these cards up in packages of from 35 to 40 cards in each package (no duplicates), and we're going to call this our recipe grab bag and will distribute these recipe packages as far as they will go to those who care to write to Martha Lee, 5 Winthrop sq., enclosing 5 loose two-cent stamps for return postage.

You're likely to find everything from apple raisin pie to southern fried chicken in your package, but among the collection there's sure to be several recipes that we believe will become family favorites. The supply is mighty limited so we'd suggest sending for your package today.

CHINESE WANT U. S. WHEAT

Shanghai, Aug. 17 (AP)—It was learned from an authoritative source here today the Chinese government recently inquired through diplomatic channels whether the American Farm Board would be willing to sell on liberal terms "a substantial quantity of wheat," for the relief of millions of flood sufferers in the Yangtse valley. Washington has not yet replied.

The Associated Press learned the National Flod Relief Commission already is negotiating for cargo space to bring American wheat to China and hoping the farm board's terms will permit large purchases.

John Earl Baker, American, who heads the flood relief commission's survey party, has arranged to fly from here to Hankow tomorrow to estimate what will be needed immediately to save approximately 500,000 destitute persons in that region.

'WET' NEXT FALL IS LABOR'S GOAL

Washington, Aug. 17 (INS)—Modification of the Volstead Act by Congress next winter rather than after the 1932 national election today became the goal of labor's national committee supporting beer and light wines.

Although Congress at present is regarded as overwhelmingly dry, labor advocates plan to press their case, with the depression as an added argument for speedy action.

Special committees of labor are called for in every locality to serve permanently through the campaign. President Matthew Woll has opened national headquarters here.

To further the fight, efforts will be made to qualify and register 15,000,000 eligible voters throughout the country. The labor leaders believe this is necessary to gain a complete expression and also believe that the majority would vote wet.

Navy Captures Montauk Point

—By Arthur "Bugs" Baer—

Did or did not our fleet visit Montauk to boost real estate values?

Mixing with society was fine for the tattooed gobs. Some of the ancient dowagers wanted to sit up all night and look at the pictures.

Taxicabs cost the enlisted men six dollars a trip. And if you don't think that's a week's pay in the navy then you can slap our face and reduce our alimony.

Single rooms at the Swankola hotels cost from ten to twenty dollars a night. Just the right rate for a gob who carries navy beans in his money pocket so he will have something to jingle.

Looks like the fleet's visit to Montauk was not a social success. Not since a handsome sailor told a chaperon that his father owned the navy.

Montauk hasn't yet recovered from its first dance, navy style. You wear shinguards, clutch-as-clutch-can, and when the band strikes up, it's every man for hisself.

GANDHI MAY YET GO TO LONDON

The prospect of his ultimate departure became distinctly brighter when it was learned he was willing to withdraw his demand for the appointment either of an arbitration board or of a high court judge to investigate alleged breaches in the Delhi pact provided the Government designates a single trustworthy civilian or Government official to hear his complaints.

RED PERIL AT BRITAIN'S DOOR

ful to economics as the French Revolution was to politics. Liberty was then the watchword; work or bread is the watchword now.

The French revolution meant political emancipation of the masses. Economic emancipation is now demanded. It is symbolic that war monuments were erected only to common soldiers. Vast masses of living unknowns are marching toward their economic place in the sun.

The revolution initiated by the challenge of Bolshevism to capitalism, or what Count Keyserling calls "privatism," is intensified by the breakdown of capitalism, which must face the charge of millions of hungry amid the greatest abundance of goods in the world's history.

The collapse is the result of the mushroom growth of the world's social overhead, represented by huge political debts, armaments and socialistic extravagance.

COST OF GANGDOM

In America, racketeering is costing $12,000,000,000 a year—all of which reduced to purchasing power has glutted the markets and produced a problem of overproduction which is really under-consumption. The greatest loss of all is uncertainty in the future and loss of confidence, stifling business initiative.

The revolutionary tide spreading from Moscow and battering the gates of Asia and Australia threatens to make Germany its first European victim.

The victors of Versailles left the East Prussian fortress as a defense against Bolshivism, but reparations and their refusal to make peace with German nationalism and the properties class put socialism in the saddle and undermined Germany's old social and economic structure.

The world is still courting German socialism because it is a convenient foreign policy, forcing Chancellor Heinrich Bruening to lean in the same direction.

The crisis precipitated by France's haggling over the Hoover moratorium has driven Germany further red. Before me is a report from a British bank to its clients.

CAPITALISM WARNS.

"Recent developments in Germany," the report reads, "must afford concern to the entire capitalistic system. It is little realized yet to what extent Germany has adopted the practices of Soviet Russia. Banking has become a state monopoly. The mark is pegged currency, little different from the system of control of the rouble.

"The Government controls foreign trade as effectively as the Soviet. German officialdom can cause inflation, dump goods abroad and generally menace capitalist countries to a greater extent than Soviet Russia has done.

"This extreme form of organized state socialism carried out with usual German efficiency gives a real basis of worry for all capitalist countries."

The German crisis is due partly to reparations and partly to socialistic extravagance. Many of Britain's troubles are due to importation of German ideas.

COST OF THE DOLE

The unemployment dole, costing more than $600,000,000 annually, is Britain's greatest menace, creating a deficit in the budget, undermining morale and creating a rapidly-growing socialistic appetite, as manifested in the far-reaching socialistic demands scheduled for presentation to the Labor party conference in October.

Steady increase of the highest taxes in the world is now approaching the point of diminishing returns, and it is only a question of time when flight of capital trying to escape [illegible] will begin the same as in Germany.

As a result, trade and industry are suffering, unemployment is rising to record heights and foreign moneys are getting scarce, which is most serious in view of the $900,000,000 of British funds frozen in German bills and credits as well as $350,000,000 of French short-term credits in London, all of which menace the gold reserve.

Britain's test will be whether she has learned from the German catastrophe. It was regarded as most encouraging that she is summoning all her moral and financial reserves. Whether the German dam can be repaired is doubtful.

NEVER DRY · NEVER DUSTY · NEVER PARCHED
—they're FRESH!

If you are not yet a Camel smoker you have a grand treat in store when first you enjoy the benefits of the Humidor Pack.

The three things in a cigarette that can make it sting the tongue and unkindly burn the throat are safely eliminated from Camels.

There are no harsh parched-dry tobaccos—the fine Turkish and mild Domestic tobaccos of which Camels are blended require no over-heating to make them palatable.

There is no peppery dust to irritate the throat—that's whisked away by a special vacuum-cleaning process.

There is no staleness nor loss of fragrance—made fine, Camels are kept fine, wherever you buy them, thanks to the Humidor Pack.

This scientific germ-safe wrapping—not plain ordinary Cellophane, but moisture-proof Cellophane which costs nearly twice as much—seals in all the aroma and freshness, seals it so tightly that wet weather cannot make Camels damp, nor drought weather make them dry.

If you want to know what that means in throat-friendliness and smoking-pleasure, try Camels for just one day, then leave them—if you can.

THIS IS LIFE

HOW CAN WE TELL A GENTLEWOMAN IN MODERN AMERICA?

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

ROBERT E. ROGERS

A CHICAGO WOMAN, an American who had married a Frenchman, left in her will the sum of $2,500,000 to provide a home for "elderly, unmarried ladies of gentle birth and breeding who have reached the age of sixty years." The headline emphasized the word "spinsters," but surely from the context it is plain that the word which should be played up is "gentlewomen." They must be unmarried, it is true, and incapable of self-support, but, more important, they must be "ladies."

Such an idea is so rare in America as to merit a passing remark. It was Barrett Wendell, I believe, who some years ago in his book, "The Privileged Class," pointed out that nearly all the resources of our public and private philanthropy are directed to the relief of one section of the population, the larger section it is true, but not the only one. For the poor, hospitals and clinics, sanitariums, homes of all sorts, are provided almost lavishly.

But for the people of the professional class and the so-called "well-to-do" class, who are just as likey to suffer from the accidents of fortune as any others, amost nothing is done. Between the increasingly expensive hospitals and sanitariums for the rich and the crowded and often perfunctory free clinics for the poor, there is seldom any provision. Such a hospital as that which the Massachusetts General recently built specifically for gently nurtured people of only moderate means is almost unknown in America. The average home for the aged is necessarily so institutionalized for the aged poor who must finally resort to it that people "who have known better days" prefer to undergo actual privation rather than resort thither.

Wealthy Neglect Their Own

Our Americans of wealth tend to be pretty neglectful of their own people, men and women who have inherited or earned a certain standard of living and who through one misfortune or another, not at all their fault, find themselves in difficulties. The "widows and orphans" of New England, who a score of years ago had every cent they possessed in railroad stocks, are cases in point. The wealthy give largely for the relief of the poor whom we have always with us, a relief which is certainly the business of the commonwealth and the community, but wealth is curiously unmindful of those to whom dependence carries an added hardship which others, perhaps, cannot know.

It is interesting to note, however, how inevitably this note of mine finds itself approaching the question from the angle of income. How can we in America evaluate the problem except in terms of the money that makes it possible to live the "good life"? Yet I feel particularly sure that the woman who left a quarter of a million dollars for the support of the aged, unmarried ladies "of gentle birth and breeding" was thinking of something far different from the former Bradstreet rating of these people. She was trying to provide for gentlewomen.

But what, under the red, white and blue canopy, is an American gentlewoman and how can she be recognized? In Engand it would still be a fairly simple matter. She would be the daughter of a gentleman, that is to say, of a man who probably owned land, or whose ancestors had owned land, and whose income was not derived from a business or profession. If she were the daughter of a barrister, she might be a gentlewoman; of a solicitor, probably not. If the daughter of a medical man, almost certainly not. Of an Anglican priest, yes. Of the preacher in a Methodist chapel, no. Of a teacher, it would all depend on her father's job.

Even in England, apparently, those categories are breaking up. In America they have never applied. And yet the money test by itself has never been sufficient in America. There are plenty of women belonging to families of great wealth who can never pass that somewhat difficult test.

I will hazard a guess as to what the testatrix meant in her will.

The chances are that she meant a woman of old American stock, presumably British, with at least several generations out of the possible nine or ten attested genealogically. Her family should have been well to do for two or three generations. How they made their money does not matter; the professions preferably, or some business like banking or clipper ship trading or railroading or copper mining, but retail trading is, of course, not barred. She should have been to a private school or academy and should not, herself, have engaged in any business or profession, except perhaps school teaching, always a genteel occupation for females. And she should have the voice and diction and manners of a gentlewoman.

The Probable Test

I suspect that it all boils down to this last. The other requirements in America are far too uncertain and flexible. In the last analysis our unmarried candidate for the Gentlewomen's Home will probably get by the board of admission, or be turned down by them, almost entirely on the impression which she as an individual, rather than as a member of a class, makes on her peers. If that is the case, parenthetically, a lot of our younger women who qualify technically would be barred by their speech and behavior, their manners or the lack of them.

My feeling can best be illustrated by an anecdote. Several years ago a destroyer fleet anchored in the harbor of a summer resort. The townsfolk were invited out to visit the ship. The local magnates and summer fashionables went out, of course, in the boats of the officers whom they had entertained. The rest of the crowd lined up for the half-hourly trip of the longboats (or whatever they call them now) manned by the sailors. It was a large, good-natured, pushing, commonplace crowd. In it was a middle-aged woman quietly dressed, somewhat prim in manner, a stranger in the town. She obviously didn't like standing in line and waiting.

As an officer's boat was about to push off, she went up and spoke to the officer in charge. After a few minutes' conversation she was invited aboard. I doubt if there was another woman in the crowd who could have done it and got away with it. She was obviously what our philanthropist would call a gentlewoman and, as obviously, she knew it. She carried her own credentials in speech, manners and self-confidence. She was, it is true, a product of the old America that is passing.

Perhaps that is why the Chicago woman is leaving her money to care for people like her. She is unmistakable, the genuine article—and the America of today thinks very little of her or of her welfare.

WOMEN TELL OF GIFT HOUSE

ROWLEY 'HOME FOR DOROTHY,' THEY CLAIM

Lynn Doctor's Suit to Recover the Property From a Former Housekeeper Moves Along

On several occasions Dr. James C. Rowley of Lynn spoke to them of the new house he was building "for Dorothy," two women testified today at Lynn before Atty. John Fogarty as master.

With Dr. Rowley on the road to recovery in Union Hospital, where he underwent two abdominal operations, Mrs. Geraldine Munroe, blonde divorcee, of West Baltimore st., Lynn, testified that Dr. Rowley sat beside her one day in a Lynn restaurant and asked if Mrs. Hannon had told her about "the new house I'm building for Dorothy."

She replied she had not seen Mrs. Hannon for some time. Then the doctor, she said, invited her to visit the house and look it over.

Under cross-examination Mrs. Munroe denied attending parties in the new house and said she had been there only once when she saw no drinking.

Mrs. Mary Maloney, a striking brunette living in Adams st., Lynn, testified she had known the doctor and Mrs. Hannon for four years.

On one occasion, Mrs Maloney testified, while visiting Dr. Rowley's former home in Broad st., where Mrs. Hannon was housekeeper, he told her he was building a new home for Mrs. Hannon, because he wished her to have it in the event anything happened to him.

Followng testimony of the two women, the master, with counsel for both sides, left the courthouse to visit the new home, with further hearings adjourned until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Plane in Which Fanchon Is Traveling Crashes in a Terrific Storm

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

While the newsboys shouted [illegible] about the big gang [illegible] Fanchon Meredith and a man named Tony planned their getaway. Tony gives Fanchon $4000 and reserves passage for her under the name of "Miss Smith" on an airplane chartered by [illegible] wealthy Mr. Eames en route to New York. A fellow passenger whom she had previously met on the boat coming from Hawaii, recognizes Fanchon. She is Evelyn Howard. Evelyn is going to live with the wealthy Mrs. Alison Carstairs, an aunt whom she has never seen. Fanchon envies Evelyn [illegible] to happiness while she is trying to escape [illegible] girl—Tony, who lied his way [illegible] and whom she had [illegible] accepted on face value.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

"NO, NOT THAT." Anton Franc[illegible] had [illegible] a "good girl" when he met one. [illegible] had been Tony's girl—and not so good before Fanchon with her golden skin and turquoise eyes and [illegible] black hair had smiled across a library desk into T[illegible] shuddering, dazed eyes—

"There isn't very much more to tell," Fanchon went on swiftly, "remember I had no one to warn me. No friends. And very little knowledge of the world, especially of Tony's world. The world of the racketeer."

"Racketeer . . . !" gasped Evelyn.

"Yes. He—he is a gunman . . ." said Fanchon, slowly. "I only learned that . . . a little while ago. And there was a dope ring. Oh, I don't understand it. I never shall! But there was a—a murder, lately. He's implicated. I was seen with him the night it happened, a few hours before. They . . ."

[illegible] in the papers [illegible]

"Yes [illegible] wanted to report me to the police [illegible] grateful [illegible] haven't much [illegible] Tony gave me money [illegible] away. He found [illegible] about this small airplane [illegible] and the plane Mr. Eames chartered, and the fact [illegible] booked passengers [illegible] trip. He [illegible] watched. He booked the passage for me under the name of Smith.

"I spent the night before [illegible] in a little hotel in [illegible]"

"I heard them call you 'Smith,'" remembered Evelyn slowly, "when we started. I thought it just a mistake."

"I know. Well, of course when I saw you, I was terrified. But I'm glad now. I—I had to tell somebody. Ask for help. I must get work in the East. I don't care what it is. I'd go into domestic service if it were safer than anything else. I want to bury myself somewhere. I must."

[illegible]

"I don't know. I cared for the man I thought he was. But this is a different man. When I think of what his life must have been! There may be," said Fanchon and shuddered, "there may be blood on his hands. I don't want to see him again. Not ever. I'll pay back the money he gave me some day, somehow. I must. But—I don't want to see him again," she repeated.

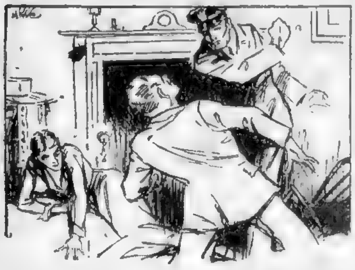
MANY 'DRY' IN MYSTERY WATER SHUT-OFF

DAILY TRUE STORY
ONE GOOD DEED



WITHOUT A WORD HAGGERTY WADED IN

HAGGERTY WAS a good cop, the kind of cop who is the backbone of any properly-functioning police force. Which is to say he saw to it that conditions on his beat—and it was in a tough part of the town—were peaceful, orderly and decent.

When a young fellow showed signs of getting tough and as they say throwing his weight around, Haggerty warned him. He didn't threaten him; he just warned him and tried to talk some sense into him. If that didn't do any good Haggerty might run him in, but he never made an arrest unless [illegible] to. Because a good cop on a fixed post [illegible] make many arrests. It's his job to see [illegible] which make arrests necessary are stamped out.

Haggerty didn't have much trouble until Buck Simpson moved onto his beat. But trouble started soon after that. It started the night he heard screams coming from the Simpson home and went in to find the woman who was known as Mrs. Simpson nursing a black eye and a swollen lip. She was lying on the floor and Simpson was standing over her telling her that there was more where that had come from.

Most cops would have locked up Simpson and would then have lost the case in court when the woman refused to testify. But that wasn't Haggerty's way.

He didn't say a word to Simpson. He just waded in and a few minutes later Simpson was lying on the floor with his face out of shape.

Beaten Almost Every Day

"And there's more where that came from, too," said Haggerty. "If you want to go down to headquarters and make a squawk about it I'll just say you got it resisting arrest. But you take my advice and keep your hands off women."

The woman wasn't Mrs. Simpson, Haggerty knew that. But such a cases were common on his post; cases of women who had trusted some man, but taken up with him and learned to live in fear of an almost daily beating.

After that Haggerty used to sometimes see the woman. She would try to thank him now and then and tell him that Simpson was treating her fairly well.

"But it's only because he's scared of you," she said. "And you'd better watch yourself. He's a wild man when he's drunk and he says he's going to get you."

Haggerty merely laughed. He had been threatened before. Then he became serious again. "Why don't you leave him?" he asked. "He's no good."

The woman attempted a smile which ended in a pitiful shrug. "I don't know," she said. "Maybe some day I will. But he says he'll kill me if I do."

Haggerty continued to keep an eye on the Simpson home and he made it his business to learn Simpson's business. That wasn't hard: dope peddling. But it was harder to catch him at it. Haggerty reported it to headquarters and the commanding officer of the narcotic squad promised to put a couple of men after Simpson. But somehow they never got the goods on him.

One night Haggerty was passing the Simpson home when the woman met him.

"I had to warn you," she said. "You're the only one who has ever been decent to me. He's in there now talking to another man. They're going to get you. He knows that you know about him, about his dope peddling, I mean."

Haggerty patted her shoulder. "You go back into the house," he said. "I can take care of myself."

Two hours later he had forgotten about it as he walked along the dark street swinging his club and idly whistling. He was at the other end of his post several blocks distant from the Simpson home, as he passed the dark mouth of an alley.

No Time to Draw
Club Rose and Fell

He didn't see the man who stepped out behind him with a leveled pistol. The first Haggerty knew of the other's presence when he heard a sharp 'click' directly behind his head. As he whirled there was another click.

He didn't try to draw his own gun—there wasn't time. Twice his club rose and fell. The first [illegible] [illegible] the home [illegible] with [illegible] The second [illegible] him to the [illegible] of a [illegible] emptied [illegible] Haggerty bent over him for a moment and then went to call an ambulance.

Simpson got fifteen years in prison for that: ten years for assault with intent to kill and five years for possession of a pistol. With his previous record he didn't have a chance of getting a lesser sentence.

The woman disappeared shortly afterward and Haggerty never saw her again. But a few days after Simpson was sentenced he received a small package addressed to him at the station house. When he opened it and examined its contents he understood something that had [illegible] before [illegible] Simpson's pistol.

There were six bullets in the package and a penciled note rolled about them.

"I took these out of his gun," the note said. That was all. But Haggerty understood.

HOMES DEPEND ON NEIGHBORS FOR SUPPLY

City Officials Fail to Find the Cause of Stoppage on Emrose Terrace

Two score persons, at least 15 of them children, awoke in houses of Emrose ter., Dorchester, today, to find no water in their homes—and the reason a mystery.

City water officials rushed an emergency crew to the scene when they were unable to account for the condition.

Six houses in the terrace were affected, but Magnolia st. residents at the foot of the terrace had their regular supply.

After many tests were made in the houses by the city emergency crew a probe for a possible stoppage under the street surface was started.

Mindful of Mayor Curley's recent edict against shutoffs in residential districts, housewives indignantly called City Hall, but were told by Division Engineer Christopher J. Carven that no shutoff had been ordered.

The families affected by the mystery included Mrs. Theresa Kelley and five children, Mr. and Mrs. John Mead and four children, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy H. Blank and three children, Mr. and Mrs. John J. Shea and two children, and the homes of Lewis F. Bernard, George A. Gallagher, William A. McCarthy, John J. Boyle, Mrs. Mary A. Black, Samuel Gordon, James Jansson, Francis E. Kennedy, Mrs. Mary Anderson, Daniel J. O'Connor and George E. Blank.

Housewives were forced to make frequent trips to Magnolia st. neighbors, where kettles and pans of all descriptions were filled.

DAUGHTERS OF DISTANCE

TELEPHONE AND FORGET THE MILES

GIRLS of today are Daughters of Distance. Air-speed, land-speed, water-speed, are giving them an entirely new conception of travel-mileage. And voice-mileage is made a commonplace by means of radio, wireless and telephone.

Once it was neighborhood news when Daughter telephoned home while visiting a hundred miles away. Daughters of today telephone each month . . each week . . from school, from camp, from vacation trips. And for every call, some mother or father feels a little more comfortable . . a little more secure.

Daughters-away-from-home call 25 miles for twenty-five cents . . 64 miles for fifty cents . . 174 miles for one dollar. For distances beyond 25 miles, the evening rate from 7 to 8:30 p.m. is about a fourth less than the day rate; and after 8:30 p.m. the night rate is about half the day rate.

BIGELOW CALLS AUTO MORE DEADLY

Warns Parents Against Panic; Five New Cases in Boston; Disease Makes Gain

Sixteen new cases of infantile paralysis were reported to the state department of public health today, according to an announcement by Dr. George H. Bigelow, commissioner of health.

Of the new cases which developed over the week-end five were in Boston, two each in Brockton, Cambridge and Holyoke and one each in [illegible], Chicopee, Leominster, [illegible] and Pittsfield.

AUTO IS MORE DEADLY

Dr. Bigelow said these cases brought the August total to 176 and that Massachusetts has the fourth highest rate in the country.

He pointed out, however, in commenting on the spread of parents' panic over the spread of infantile paralysis that fatalities from auto accidents are far greater in number.

"It is of some significance," Dr. Bigelow said, "that, while the total number of deaths so far reported as due to this disease this year are comparatively few, the deaths we note as due to auto accidents last week alone were 22.

"We have been completely unable to get any popular interest in the control of rabies and yet there have been one-fifth as many deaths from this as from infantile paralysis."

MASSACHUSETTS FOURTH

Dr. Bigelow said a study of infantile paralysis figures last week from various parts of the country appeared to indicate increases in all states except New Hampshire, Vermont and Pennsylvania.

In the number of cases in proportion to every 100,000 of population, Connecticut has the highest rate, he said. Then come New York, Rhode Island and Massachusetts, followed by New Jersey and Maine.

New Hampshire, Vermont and Pennsylvania are [illegible] entirely free of the disease, he said.

The only other comment Mr. Ogden made was "There is nothing the matter with New England."

His offices are in the Chamber of Commerce building, 80 Federal st. He put in a busy day receiving callers.

Until assigned to his new job he was in charge of traffic at New York for the Pennsylvania road.

Physical Examination Is Advised in Neuralgia

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

RECENTLY I wrote about a painful condition known as [illegible] or neuralgia of the face. Today I want to [illegible] more about neuralgia.

Dr Copeland

Neuralgia is the word used to describe pain in a nerve. Such pain usually runs along the course of the affected nerve.

Neuralgic pain is a severe, darting, burning, sticking, or throbbing pain. It may be constant, or it may come and go.

Facial neuralgia which I mentioned the other day is of a severe type, involving one or more of the nerves of the face. There are of course other varieties of neuralgia involving any part of the body.

The cause of neuralgia [illegible] can be traced to an infection. Yet it is true that members of certain families are more subject to this disease than others. It affects women more than men. Children rarely suffer from neuralgia.

Neuralgia often presents itself as a first sign in certain acute diseases. This is the case sometimes, for example, in typhoid fever. Exposure to cold may bring on an attack of neuralgia in a susceptible person. Usually before the attack there is a tingling and an uneasy sensation in the part of the body which pretty soon will be more violently affected.

The pain is localized in one nerve or in a group of nerves. It is peculiar that a neuralgic pain usually affects only one side of the body. Sudden movements or muscular exertion of the part involved are likely to be painful.

During a severe spasm of pain there may be marked twitching of the muscles. Such attacks may last a few minutes, or for many hours.

Unfortunately, recurrences are not unusual. Indeed, the attacks may occur after rather definite intervals, perhaps every day at the same hour, or every second or third day.

How Time Adjusts Wrongs!

By WINIFRED BLACK

WE SAT right next to her at the theater the other day, the woman I knew long ago.

Winifred Black

She hadn't changed much. She was always a kind of eager, gaunt, thin, gray looking woman with big, greedy eyes, and a sullen little mouth [illegible] Dressed in the very latest [illegible] of course.

She knew me the minute I spoke, and what a good time we had, talking about old times. We could hardly wait for the curtain to go down between the acts to begin saying "do you remember" and "Wasn't Such and Such a scream?" and "poor old Billie, I wonder what became of that horrid wife of his?"

We promised to see each other soon, my old acquaintance and I, but we both knew we didn't really mean it, and neither of us cared—really, but we promised just the same, in the nice agreeable way that women have when they don't mean a word of it.

After we parted—the woman who was on the other side of me said:

"When did you and Grace make up?"

"Make up," I echoed, "why, what do you mean?"

The other woman stared, and then she laughed.

"Why, the last time you mentioned her," she said, "you told me you hoped you'd never see her again. You said she was greedy and insincere and shallow-hearted and envious. You'd had some kind of quarrel, I think. What was it, anyhow?"

"A quarrel?" I echoed, vaguely. Did we? Well, maybe we did—seems to me I do remember something—it may have been my fault for all I know. She's an amusing person, but I do seem to remember that she got on my nerves, or got on hers, or something. Anyhow, it's all over now. I'm glad I met her again. Wasn't that the smartest hat, and did you ever see such aristocratic feet?"

I don't suppose I'll ever see her again—I wonder what it was we quarreled about, anyhow; it would be sort of fun to remember.

I don't believe she can think of it, either, and yet at the time how important were our wrongs.

Etiquette for the Dining Coach

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Should a woman wear her hat, but no coat, while eating in the dining car of a train, whether she is on a long journey or not; that is, sleeping on the train?

MRS. B.

Yes. As a matter of fact, I think that this is one of the social details in which a woman can at once indicate that she knows what's what in traveling. The woman accustomed to traveling with good taste always wears her hat into the dining-car, whether she is on the train for only a few hours or for a long journey. That is, she regards the dining-car, as it should be regarded, as a public dining room.

"Guide, Philosopher, Friend"

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am to be married and am going to have a formal affair. A question of etiquette arises as to the meaning of the term "best man." Is it the closest friend of the groom, or can it mean a brother?

BENJAMIN.

The best man is the "guide, philosopher and friend" of the groom on the "great day." Usually the groom chooses his brother as his best man, or, if he has no brother, a cousin, or his closest friend. If the groom has a brother old enough to be his best man, it would be surprising if he did not invite him to act in this important capacity.

GRAND HOTEL

BILLBOARDS still whirled past the car, but the spaces between began to alter. Then the gray ragged streaks beside the road became pine woods. Kringelein saw trees eddying more slowly to meet the car and stepping back into the wood like people as the car went by.

Now he could read the names of oils, tires and makes of cars on the signs. The rush of air relaxed and streamed in his throat. The speedometer sank to 60, trembled a little, then 50, 45, and then they left the Avus by the south gate and drove along soberly between the villas of the Wannsee.

"There—now I feel better," said Gaigern, and laughed all over his face. Kringelein took his hands from the leather cushion in which till now he had dug his fingers and carefully relaxed his jaws and shoulders and knees. He felt completely tired and completely happy.

"So do I," he answered truthfully. He spoke very little while they sat after this on the empty glass-roofed terrace of a restaurant looking over the Wannsee and watched the sailing boats [illegible] to think out the experience [illegible] been through. What a [illegible] it was then that [illegible] through and through you and [illegible] more beautiful than music. Everything was still revolving in circles around him, but it was just what pleased him. He had the bo[illegible] of [illegible] on him, but he did not take [illegible] of it.

"I must offer you my heartiest thanks for this wonderful drive," he said studiously, expressing himself in a manner he considered fitting to the circles in which he now moved. Gaigern, who had chosen very plain fare, an egg on spinach—made light of the obligation. "It amused me," he said. "It was your first experience and it's so seldom you find anyone who experiences something for the first time."

"But you do not give one the impression of being blasé yourself, if I may say so," Kringelein replied very aptly. He was quite at home in his new clothes and in his silk shirt. He sat and he ate in a different manner, and his thin hands emerging from the cuffs of his shirt gave him particular satisfaction. They had been manicured that morning by a pretty girl in the hotel basement.

"Good Lord! I, blasé!" Gaigern said delightedly. "No, certainly not. Only, a man like me has a full life." He had to smile. "Though you're right. There are things that even a man like me experiences for the first time—funny things," he added to himself. He clenched his fine teeth softly together and thought of Grusinskaya. He was devoured by impatience for the moment when he should have her in his arms again with all her tender need of him and hear again the sad twittering notes of her bird-like voice. He gave himself three days, inwardly fretting with impatience, in which to raise the few thousand marks that would keep his associates quiet and enable him to get off for Vienna. In the meanwhile he paid every attention to Kringelein and hoped that things would take a favorable turn.

"What is the next item on the program?" asked Kringelein, and blinked at him with a sincere and grateful look from his blue eyes. Gaigern took to this quiet fellow from the provinces, who sat like a child at a Christmas party. A human kindliness and warmth were so implicit in his nature that his victims always benefited by their due share of them.

"Now we are going to fly," he said in the soothing tone of a children's nurse. "It's a very jolly and not dangerous, not half so dangerous as a motor car on a fixed track."

"Was that very dangerous?" asked Kringelein with surprise. Now that he had overcome it he was conscious of his alarm only as a pleasure.

"Can't be otherwise," said Gaigern. "One hundred and eighteen kilometers is no trifle, and the road was wet. You never know when you may strike a slippery patch, and any moment the car may skid. Bill, please," he said amiably to the waiter and he paid for his modest dish of spinach and poached eggs. There were still 24 marks left in his pocketbook. Kringelein paid too. He had only had a few spoonfuls of soup for he suspected his stomach of rebellious and mischievous designs. As he put back his pocketbook—it was the old shabby one of his Fredersdorf days—he had a fleeting and now meaningless vision of his account book in black [illegible] cloth. Till that morning, since his ninth year he had entered every penny he spent in such a little book. It was not worth while doing it now. The time for it was past. A thousand marks in one morning was [illegible] beyond entering. A part of Kringelein's worry had flown off noiselessly and without a [illegible]. Kringelein as he followed Gaigern down from the empty restaurant terrace to the car moved his shoulders luxuriously in his new coat, new suit and new shirt. Now everyone stood with a bow to let him pass. I wish you good morning, Herr Generaldirektor, he thought, and saw himself flattened to the greenish-gray wall of the second floor of the counting house at Fredersdorf. He put away his pince-nez when he had taken his seat beside Gaigern and exposed his naked eyes to the bright sunshine. It was with a pleasant excitement and confidence that he felt the engine starting up.

"The road of the Avus again?"

"Oh, the Avus," replied Kringelein, "and at the same pace," he added lightly.

"Ah, you have pluck, then?" said Gaigern, and accelerated.

"Yes, I have," said Kringelein, leaning forward with taunt muscles, ready with parted lips to enjoy life to the full.

Some Hints for Enhancing Your Charm

IF VANISHING cream is among the beauty quester's beloved possessions she should select the kind that matches her complexion. White makes the skin look chalky. The best selection is ivory color.

Brown mascara can be used to make eyebrows darker and more enticing. Dip the small brush in water, pass over the cake of mascara and touch brows lightly. It will do for eyelashes, if applied skillfully.

You can get powder compacts and rouge compacts in all colors now. Sassy girls have them to match their frocks or purses, or both. Rouge pads should be changed frequently. Catch dust and rub it into the pores.

To sleep restfully form the habit of making the mind a blank. It can be done. Doctors learn the trick. They sleep any time.

Cornmeal, mixed with soap suds, is simply elegant for washing the hands after rough house work has been done—wiping off windowsills or polishing the gas range. Use a hand lotion afterwards.

Back to School, Advises Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young man of 19 and I need advice rather badly. I was going with a girl who happens to have been born in a foreign country and this made my mother object to my keeping company with her. I went around with her for two years and we were planning to be married as soon as I finished my schooling, but I decided to leave school and go to work, which I did. This all happened back in December past. After I had left school about two weeks, my girl friend told me she could not go with a fellow who had no education and we broke up our friendship. This girl has since mentioned me to my friends as "the boy who is going to be a bum all the rest of his life." I admitted to her folks and to mine that I was wrong when I left school and told them that I was going back to finish school in the fall. I love this girl and would like to know how to win her back. When I meet her on the street she will not even speak to me. But her mother always speaks. I have always been a gentleman while I was going with her. I hope you will give me some real good advice.

GIGOLO.

Dear Gigolo: The best advice I can give you is to go back to school and get yourself a good education. In these days of keen competition, youth needs all the equipment it can have. I have very little sympathy with people who object to someone because they were born in a different country. This country is a melting pot, and people should try to get over their prejudices in regard to other nations.

"Wild" Girl After Him

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am engaged to be married to a young man who is 24 years old. He is very good looking and attractive, and we have been engaged for three months. There is a girl who is running after him and she is considered very wild, while I have high moral standards. He doesn't seem to care for her, but she just won't leave him alone. I want your advice as to whether I should continue our love affair or break it up.

BABE.

Dear Babe: If the young man is the kind of person you want to marry, and he doesn't care for the other girl, there is no reason why you should break up on account of a wild girl running after him. Of course, if he should begin to neglect you on account of [illegible] that would be another mat[illegible]

FANNING

By GEORGE UNDERWOOD

Can't See McLarnin. | Face Like an Angel.

PETROLLE SHINDY SHOULD BE CLASSIC

He's only a baby-faced cherub, but fights to beat the band,
Tho' laughter lurks in his blue eyes, there's dynamite in each hand
Shows despite the face of an angel, the divil is in his heart

It is too bad that Jimmy McLarnin is going to fight in New York instead of Boston, next Thursday night. There's a laughing eyed, smiling faced little fighting Irishman Boston would cuddle to its heart. Yes, it's too bad that McLarnin is going to crawl through the ropes against Billy Petrolle in a Gotham ring instead of here in the Hub. The McLarnin Petrolle duel is a shindy Bostonians would take to like a duck to water. No cream-puff, stalling, hugging Junebride clutchers, Jimmy and Bill. Both of 'em hard-fisted, two fisted fighting guys and as evenly matched as any two apples in a barrel. It has been a long, long time since as evenly matched a pair of real fighting men have been brought together as will step forth into the white glare of the lights that will make the ring at Yankee Stadium brighter than the desert sands at mid-day, next Thursday night

Next to Jack Dempsey, little smiling faced Jimmy McLarnin with the map of Ireland on his face, the twinkle of Killarney's lakes in his eyes, dynamite in both hands and the divil in his heart, once he hears the gong clang, is the most colorful romantic fistic figure of the last two decades From the time he entered the ring he gave the sports scribes plenty of "copy"

McLARNIN
AN ANGEL IN HIS FACE BUT TH' DIVIL IN HIS HEART!

Born in Belfast, Ireland, near the spot where Ike Weir, the Belfast Spider came from, raised in the Canadian Northwest, little Jimmy fought his first fights in the alley back of a Vancouver newspaper with the rest of the newsies. In Vancouver little Jimmy became acquainted with old Pop Foster, who in his way is just as quaint a character as his protege.

Pop was an old English fighter. When war broke out he was neither too old nor too proud to fight. He enlisted and crossed the Channel with the first consignment of British troops. He was in the thick of the fighting and was wounded many times But he does not talk of his wounds nor show his scars. A quiet, unobtrusive old chap is old Pop Foster. He's been Americanized, Canadianised, but the old Cockney stills creeps in his speech.

The lines of destiny of old Pop Foster and little cherubic, baby-faced Jimmy McLarnin crossed. There was an instant liking. Old Pop took Jimmy away from the big brood of other McLarnin boys and girls and legally adopted him. Seeing in him great natural speed, cleverness and fighting ability old Pop taught Jimmy all he knew and taught him well

They came to the States, the little wisp of an Irish lad and the ruddy faced, silvery haired old Englishman. They came down the Coast from Vancouver to San Francisco, the fight center of the Pacific. There at Oakland, across the Bay, old man Foster begged Tommy Simpson, the Oakland promoter, to give McLarnin a fight. Simpson got one look at McLarnin's baby face, his thin, scrawny build and his pipe stem limbs and said: "If I let that kid into the ring I'd be pinched!"

Old Pop Foster and Jimmy McLarnin for weary months hung around Oakland. They lived in an abandoned fisherman's shack. They made their living crabbing and fishing the Bay.

"DO YOU WANT ME PINCHED?"

On fight nights they hung around Simpson's club, week after week, month after month, begging for a match. Always Simpson queried: "Do you want me to be pinched?" Finally there came a night when a last minute substitution gave McLarnin his chance He was in his togs, gloves on and on the way to the ring before Simpson really consented.

The little skinny, scrawny, Irish-Canadian's speed, skill and boxing wizardry amazed the Native Sons. McLarnin was a hit from the start. Jimmy launched into boxing at just the most rapid period of adolescence. He grew from a flyweight to a lightweight in a few years. In those few years he knocked out Jackie Fields, afterwards welterweight champion, and won from such great ring men as Pancho Villa, world's flyweight champion, and Fidel La Barba and Bud Taylor, afterwards bantam champions.

McLarnin's fame spread East. He came to New York. Jimmy knocked out Louis Kid Kaplan, world's featherweight champion, rocked Sid Terris, then Idol of the East Side, to sleep and was catapulted into a premature match with Sammy Mandell, world's lightweight champion. Mandell gave McLarnin a boxing lesson. Two years later Jimmy came back and fairly massacred his erstwhile conqueror.

Jimmy McLarnin is of the breed which come back. He has the true warrior's heart. Beaten to a pulp by Billy Petrolle in their first meeting, only his lion's heart saving him from a knockout, little Shamus came back and turned the tables on the Fargo Express in a second meeting. We would like to be at the ringside when McLarnin and Petrolle clash in the rubber match at Yankee Stadium next Thursday night!

When Irish Jimmy McLarnin, the leather starts to sling,
The Irish in the gallery they all start to sing—
"When Irish eyes are smiling, they'll steal your heart away,

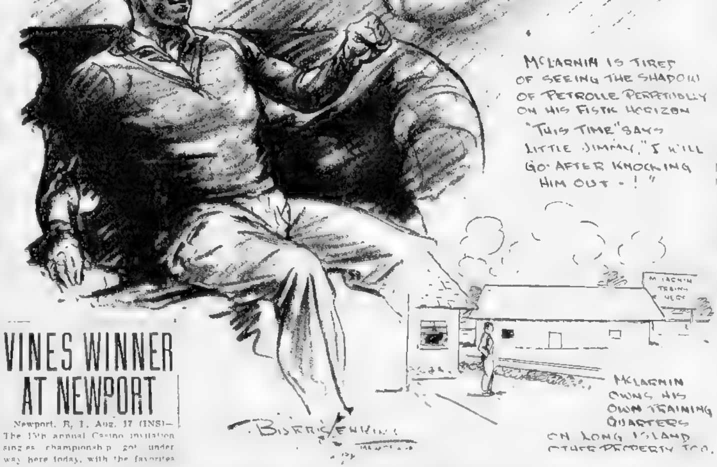
THE LITTLE DARLIN' WITH TH' DIVIL IN HIS HEART

ANYWAY I'M NOT LOSING!
"IF NOBODY LED TO PETROLLE, THERE WOULDN'T BE A BLOW STRUCK... HE'S STRICTLY COUNTER....
FIGHTERS HAVE FOUND THAT GOLF IS ONE OF THE BEST WAYS OF FIGHT TRAINING I OFTEN SHOOT 45 HOLES A DAY!"
"BUT FIGHT TRAINING IS BAD FOR GOLF - MY HOOK TURNS TO A SLICE AS SOON AS I START TRAINING -"
"I WATCHED LEONARD TRAIN AT GUS WILSON'S HE CAN BOX...BUT WILL HE DRAW,"



McLARNIN IS TIRED OF SEEING THE SHADOW OF PETROLLE PERPETUALLY ON HIS FISTIC HORIZON
"THIS TIME" SAYS LITTLE JIMMY, "I WILL GO AFTER KNOCKING HIM OUT - !"

THE DAILY DOZEN

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Major Frank Cavanaugh, football coach at Fordham University, has called out his candidates early this year. He needs the first week to learn how to pronounce the names of the players.

Among the candidates for the Maroon eleven are: Sienkiewicz, Bonitsaki, Modzeleski, Uzdavanis, Faslicouvic, Szeszkowski and Szymanski, together with several others whose names contain no vowels.

They say Demosthenes, one of the greatest orators who ever lived, perfected his speech with his mouth filled with pebbles. After this football season, we'll play Major Cavanaugh, ten to one, as a greater orator than Demosthenes ever could be.

If the Fordham eleven is as tough as the names of its players, it will easily win the Eastern championship.

There are 23 nationalities represented on the Temple University grid squad. From such as these are all-American teams picked! Let the Klan take notice.

The son of a millionaire at Harrison, N. Y., recently lost two balls in a pond. When he completed his round, he took off his shoes and stockings and searched the mud for half an hour until he found them. He was later adopted by a Scottish clan.

Al Wittmer, new Princeton football coach, says that the day of inflammatory pep talks to players in grid games are over. But what Harvard wants to know is, do the Tiger players still wear rings?

A life guard at Atlantic City, who has rescued over a thousand persons from drowning, claims that it is only the men who offer resistance. He says the women are much easier to save. We'll wager most of the men who fought their rescuer were married.

It is said that it would take 94 years to complete all the courses offered by the University of Florida. What an ideal school for the tramp athlete!

Fifteen fans were arrested at the Philadelphia-Pittsburgh double header on Saturday. Those who admitted they were betting on Philadelphia, were held for observation, but were later released when it was discovered that the Phillies won both games.

Bobby Jones insists that a sound style is not necessary for good golf. He'd be just as correct if he stopped at sound.

We'll take Twenty Grand anytime, in gold or in horse flesh.

FOOTBALL MAY BE TAXED YET

New York, Aug. 16 Football may yet be forced to turn over a share of its profits to the various states, according to the views of Henry Smith Pritchett, head of the Carnegie Foundation teaching advancement branch.

Pritchett stated, in his yearly report issued today, that stadiums such as the new Notre Dame Bowl and the Yale Bowl are used merely for public shows, and as these bowls are sources of tremendous revenues that the various states rightly may insist that a portion of the profits be turned over to the state in the form of taxes.

Dr. Pritchett also states that "It is generally conceded that football is no longer a college game." He continues in the same vein, saying that the boys who play are summoned to no boys' game when training starts, and that the students are exploited

M. G. A. Officials Must Watch for 'Cheaters'

By BILL GRIMES

[illegible] the members of [illegible] tournament committee of the Massachusetts Golf Association are [illegible] on the job tomorrow during the 13th annual caddy championship at The Country Club, the "fast pencil" boys will make a travesty of the event.

Although there are twelve members on this committee, only a small minority have favored championships with their presence. In fact five of them have not been seen this season at a tourney. As a result the work has fallen on the shoulders of C. Campbell Patterson, who is the chairman and [illegible] one of the most capable officials connected with the M. G. A., Charlie Cro[illegible], a faithful and diligent aid and Art Ro[illegible]. With Ro[illegible] hors de combat, Patterson and Cro[illegible] are in for a busiest day of their career.

It is absolutely necessary that the M. G. A. have checkers posted all over The Country Club during the caddy championships. In fairness to the boys, it must be admitted that the "cheaters" are in the minority.

But, they are there and as far as possible must be exterminated in order to protect the rest of the field. And in order to do this, the committee must get out on the course instead of posing on the [illegible] stands decorated with M. G. A. officials' badges.

Garcelon Worked to Check Cheating

In the days when Bill Garcelon was president of the M. G. A. that august body did not boast of as many committeemen as today. As a result, the checking up fell on Pres. Garcelon and he was a real checker, but in order to acquire this reputation, it was necessary for him to race miles over golf courses disqualifying players with faulty memories.

In 1925, when the caddy championship was staged at the Waltham Country Club, Bill Garcelon must have covered thirty miles. He was on the go from early morning until the last player was in and his score posted

Despite Garcelon's diligence and honest endeavor, a number of the "fast pencil" boys and the cheaters put across their stuff

It is all very well for the posers on the M. G. A. tournament committee to strut around during a State championship, but it is the duty of each and every one of them to put aside their high hats during a junior qualifying round and a caddy championship, and get out and become, if only for one day, an asset, instead of a liability, as they have been this season

Judging from the manner with which they have conducted championships this season, the M. G. A. is not up to standard and for that reason it is most essential that they all put their shoulders to the wheel and display as much efficiency as possible during the caddy championship tomorrow.

And, then they should clean house of the numerous incompetents who are rapidly nullifying the work of their predecessors, who gave years of their lives to built up the association.

Late Jock MacAndrew Only "Repeat" Champ

Approximately 100 [illegible] will play in the 13th annual caddy championship tomorrow. Like the juniors it is most difficult for a titleholder to repeat in a caddy championship. With the single exception of the late and lamented Jock MacAndrew no caddy has ever held the title for more than one year.

For this reason if for no other Harold McGrail has a tough assignment on his hand tomorrow. McGrail led the field last year at Woodland with 78-76—154.

Two years ago, at The Country Club, McGrail finished second to Phil Fahey, Winchester. Now Fahey is anxious to regain his title at the expense of McGrail and as both of these boys are playing fine golf they will be right up in the thickest of the battling from the start.

While McGrail and Fahey may be the outstanding golfers in the field there are others [illegible] Tommy Quinn, Chestnut Hill; Tommy [illegible], North Shore; Charlie F[illegible], Wellesley; Eddie and Leo Martin, Waltham; Pete B[illegible], Brockton; [illegible] Brockton and [illegible] sands. [illegible] be a real champion and a worthy successor to "Goopher" McGrail.

BOBBY BROWN O. K., SAYS SLATTERY

By JOE CASHMAN

Having given Boston its best team in a decade Judge Fuchs and his associates are now doing all in their power to make the [illegible] a [illegible] season. [illegible]

There is talk that on Evers' recommendation the Braves may [illegible] the [illegible] of the Pacific Coast League to use as a farm. If Judge Fuchs can be convinced that such a purchase would help the Braves the deal is likely to be completed for the prexy has his heart set on giving Boston a winning club.

Jack Slattery having scoured the International League, where he [illegible] ly turns out at least one first class player every season and if there is one out there at present Slattery [illegible] unturned to capture him.

Bob Brown of Hull Is Fine Hurler Now

And before coming home, the former pilot of the Warriors will see what the [illegible] association has to offer in the way of promising timber.

Slattery, incidentally, reports that Bob Brown and Billy Walters, Tribal young sters being de[illegible] for flinging [illegible] and showed a lot of promise in southern training with the Braves during the past two [illegible]

New Strength Could Put Tribe Near Top

So if Evers and Slats can find a few new candidates of worth, the Braves who are now fighting for a first division berth, may be battling for the top a year from today.

Doubleheaders, according to the law of averages, should be split nine times out of 10, but the Mc[illegible] the last few days without once [illegible] the spoils.

Twixt Tee and Cup

By BILL GRIMES

While playing with two of his brothers and John E. Sullivan recently, Joe Lynch, Albermarle, lowered the South Shore Country Club record a stroke. Lynch was out in 32 and home in 35 for a 67. He was not over par on any holes during the round and snared birdies at the third, sixth and ninth.

During his record-breaking round Lynch did not avail himself of a single preferred lie, which means his feat is all the more noteworthy. When Hank Ekstrom, [illegible] broke Dick Wood's [illegible] record of [illegible] he had the advantage of playing preferred lies.

Johnny Keefe, the club maker at The Country Club, who, incidentally, has not a peer in his line, has been priming Harold McGrail for the caddy championship tomorrow. Keefe took McGrail in hand a year ago and the result was that The Country Club bag toter won the caddy championship.

As Art Ross entered the Faulkner Hospital today, the Massachusetts Golf Association will be minus one of its most capable aids tomorrow during the Caddy championship at The Country Club.

After their two rounds at Tedesco today, there will be a number of professionals, to say nothing of the amateurs, who will not have [illegible] of their ability as before they tackled this tough layout.

When it comes to conducting as complicated a four ball tournament as Essex, Eugene F. Skip[illegible] is the master of ceremonies with the ability to go through without a single hitch. Skip has developed a system which has been copied by Salem, Kittansett, Lake Sunapee, New Bedford and many other clubs.

Although Al Teesan was unable to play in the Canadian open amateur championship last week, he is on his way "Down Home" to defend his Annapolis Valley title, which he has held for years.

Bobby Smith, who won the Dartmouth College championship last spring, is shooting a fine brand of golf. He turned in some fine rounds at Essex last week, his best being in the semifinals when he was 72 on his own ball.

Just before the Leslie Cup matches at Charles River, Jesse Guilford and Carroll Stuart who shot such a brand of golf in the Canadian open amateur championship that he beat the Gun 12 and 11, will play a return match at Brae Burn. Watch your step, Mr. Stuart.

Since playing in the Essex four-ball Invitation, Fred J. Corcoran has developed a slightly broadened "A."

The South Shore Country Club is offering no less than 12 prizes for its open tournament this year. The South Shore open starts on Friday and will continue through Saturday. The course is in the best possible condition and the scoring should be strokes lower than usual.

Everett E. Fogg gave a fine account of himself during the Essex four-ball. In fact, he was so good that it is safe to predict that never again will he play from a nine handicap at Essex.

Sinking a 15-foot uphill putt on the 21st green enabled Joe Lally of Jackson, teamed with Harry Nicolls of Gray's Inn, to win an exhibition match played against Emory Stratton and Edwin Childs on the Wentworth Hill course, New Hampshire. The match was witnessed by a gallery of nearly [illegible]

Fred J. Wright [illegible] the state amateur champion, and Joe Batchelder, the New England title holder, won in an exhibition match yesterday at Wannamoisett against Tommy Tailer, the ranking amateur of Rhode Island, and Brad Oxnard, a former champion of Little Rhody, one up.

SHIKAT TO FACE TINY ROEBUCK

Shikat is after another crack at Londos, who took the world's title from him last year.

Yesterday's Stars

By the Associated Press

Fred Marberry, Senators—Beat Browns, 5-3, for 14th victory and clouted homer to help own cause.

Babe Ruth and Lou Gehrig, Yankees—Former clouted 33d homer and double, latter two doubles and single to drive in total of six runs against Tigers.

Roger Cramer and Mickey Cochrane, Athletics—Their homers aided in defeat of Indians.

Alphonse Thomas, White Sox, and Eddie Durham, Red Sox—Former held Red Sox to six hits, latter permitted White Sox only five as a double-header was split.

Glenn Wright, Robins—Returned to line-up and collected home run, double and four singles in double-header against Reds.

Bill Walker, Giants—Stopped Cardinals with two hits, 7-1, in first game of double-header.

Flint Rhem, Cardinals—Held Giants to two hits in six innings he worked in second game.

Diamond Dust

By JOE CASHMAN

The Red Sox and White Sox play the fourth and final game of their series in the Windy City today. If old Cy Moore can beat Cecil Pat Caraway, long Texan southpaw, the Fenway flock will go into a sixth-place tie with its opponents.

The rival Hose split a twin-bill on the Sabbath, which leaves the Collinsmen one up in the engagement as Danny MacFayden turned in a 1 to 0 victory in Saturday's opener.

Alphonse Thomas, who doesn't lose to the Red Sox once in a blue moon, piloted the Pale Hose to an easy 9 to 2 victory in the first Sunday contest, but Ed Durham came through with a five-hit performance, to chalk up a 5 to 1 triumph in the nightcap and give his mates an even break for the day.

Earl Webb is in a hitting slump. He didn't make a hit in six times up in Sunday's double-header and now has played four games without hitting safely.

The Sultan of Swat has regained his throne for the time being at least. For the first time since early last season, Babe Ruth is leading both leagues in home runs, as a result of knocking out his 33d circuit drive of the campaign while the Yanks were whipping Detroit, 9 to 6. This smash broke a tie which has existed between the Bambino and his teammate, Lou Gehrig.

The champion St. Louis Cardinals retained their 9½ game lead in the National League flag struggle by splitting a doubleheader with the second-place New York Giants. The McGrawmen won the opener 7 to 1, but dropped the second 3 to 2, and the Cubs, by beating the Braves twice, went into a virtual tie for the runner-up berth.

Not that it makes much difference but the second place Senators picked up one-half game on the world champion Athletics in the American League by beating the Browns twice while the Macks, without Simmons, Boley or Dykes were beating Cleveland once. The A's now have an 11-game lead.

COBB HAS LONG K. O. RECORD

Walter Cobb, 225-lb. Kansas giant, plans to make an early appearance in Boston this week for his Eastern debut against Babe Hunt of Oklahoma in the feature bout of the opening indoor show of the Argonne A. A. at the Boston Arena next Monday night.

After scoring 27 knockouts in 40 bouts Cobb today stands out as one of the dark horses for the championship.

Willie Oster Battles Dave Shade Tonight

Chicago, Aug. 17 (INS)—Dave Shade, middleweight globe trotter and Wild Willie Oster of Boston mix in a 10-round fight here tonight. Shade has appeared in South America and England since his last engagements here a year ago, and his success there makes him an 8 to 5 favorite over the rugged Easterner.

Ernie Schaaf gets a big shot a week from Thursday night at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, when he hooks up with the gawky gaucho from the Argentine, Vittorio Campolo. Schaaf is expected to fight in the near future for the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket fund, and Johnny Buckley has promised the services of Ernie and a worthy opponent is being sought.

Jack McCarthy, one of the foremost of the Buckley farm, will be on the Schaaf-Campolo card. McCarthy looked great kayoing Mike [illegible] last week at the Garden, showing more promise every time he swings in through the ropes.

An international boxing war will be staged Wednesday night at [illegible] Field, Somerville. Simon [illegible] from Boston, New York and Nova Scotia will clash. These amateur bouts are expected to draw a record crowd for the Nova Scotia and New York teams will prove formidable contenders against the local outfit.

Andy Callahan of Lawrence and Darcy White of New Bedford swap leather in a 10-round show at New Bedford tonight. Callahan is the N. E. lightweight champion, but his title is not in danger for the boys will enter the ring at 140 pounds.

The scheduled Allen-Zelinsky bout will not be held in Portland, Me., tomorrow night. Five bouts scheduled for six rounds each will be staged instead.

An amateur boxing tournament will be held at Walkover Park, Campello, next Saturday p. m., under the auspices of the Walkover Club of Brockton. Bouts will be held in four novice classes, 118, 126, 135 and 1[illegible]

MRS. MOODY FAVORED

FOREST HILLS TITLE PLAY ON TODAY

New York, Aug. 17 (US The issue before the bar, as the women's national tennis championship starts this afternoon in Forest Hills Stadium, concerns selection of a final victim for Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, but little more than that.

It is a foregone conclusion that Helen Wills Moody who stamped her name six times in past years on the [illegible] of champions will this week add her name to the roll. There is no one yet quite able to extend her.

Unless Betty Nuthall, the English girl, [illegible] the type of crushing attack that carried her through the American championship tourney a year ago, it is likely that the final this year will be another duel of Helens, and the first All-American final since Helen Wills routed Helen Jacobs in 1928.

Miss Nuthall Likely to Play Miss Jacobs

Miss Nuthall, who rose to the championship in 1930 when Mrs. Moody left her title undefended is drawn in the lower bracket wherein also is Miss Jacobs, and the two doubtless will meet in the semifinal round.

At Wimbledon and at Forest Hills, in their last two meetings Miss Jacobs proved her superiority over the English holder of our national title, and there is consequently sufficient basis for expectation of an all-Helenic final.

If this strong possibility should come to pass, the championship round will be played by two young ladies possessing no place in the present ranking.

These two products of Berkeley, Cal., whose paths have been strangely parallel, except in the matter of winning national women's titles, both passed up the "Nationals" of 1930 and sacrificed, at the same time, a right to a national rating.

The chief use to which the "Nationals" can be put this year is as a basis for the next women's ranking. Certainly, the tournament isn't necessary, except as a formality to establish Mrs. Moody's right to her seventh national crown.

Miss Sigourney Is Helen's First Foe

En route to the championship she first won in 1923 and won again in every year since, save 1926 and 1930, Mrs. Moody will have to play six matches, starting against Miss Edith Sigourney tomorrow afternoon.

With Mrs. Moody in the upper half of the draw are the Misses Phyllis Mudford and Dorothy Round, of the English Wightman Cup team, Mrs. J. P. Pittman, of England, the Misses Dorothy Weisel, Joan Ridley, Sarah Palfrey and Mary Greef, Mrs. John Van Ryn and Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper, who topped the national ranking for last year.

The lower half seems more heavily fraught with difficulties for the eventual finalist. In that section aside from the Misses Jacobs and Barron and Mrs. Eileen Bennett Parron and Mrs. Ellen Bennett Whittingstall of the English Wightman Cup team, the Misses Josephine Cruickshank and Marjorie Morrill, Baroness Levi, and Mrs. Marion Zinderstein Jessup, who has extended Mrs. Moody farther than any other player this year.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

Thinking of swing details while trying to make golf shots leads directly to a costly golfing fault—indecision. Any shot that lacks decision is likely to be a poorly executed effort. In correct order, your first move for each shot is a snappy decision with regard to distance and club to be used. Next you give your entire attention to the ball while you put your decision into effect. Any good player goes about his shots in exactly this order. The duffer player always tries to decide while he is making his swing, which is what makes him continue to be a duffer. The best of golfing practice, with self-schooling of this order in view, is the run-up shot. Here you can decide, then concentrate. The bigger shots throughout golf are to be made in the same order, and doubtless with equally satisfying results if you get them working this way.

MAKE YOUR DECISION FIRST THEN ACT UPON IT

DAILY SHOTS FROM EVERYWHERE

He's over! Gordon Donnan of Quincy was snapped as he sailed to a first place high jump tie in the Columbus Day Nursery meet at Russell Field, North Cambridge. Try the above in the daily dozen. You'll reduce—if you don't bust first.

King seeks throne again. Harrison "Jimmy" Johnston, former national amateur golf king, is one of the linksmen who soon start play for the amateur crown at the Beverly Country Club, Chicago. It's a tough trail back. Maybe he'll make it. (Int'l Photo)

A Pertinent Question

—By M. T. McSWEENEY—

The volume of mail received by the writer is so heavy that he sometimes finds a letter addressed to him. For that reason, the column every Monday will be reserved for answering questions that perplex the reader.

"Why is it," asks one signing himself "Student" "that college presidents and professors and Foundations never criticize football or talk over-emphasis until after the grid season is over?"

Answer: The reason is this. The college might possibly have a good team that year. When it does, that makes football a fine thing for young men, as it teaches discipline, co-operative effort, self-control, sacrifice, faith, hope and charity.

When the college team is poor, and you must wait until the season is over to judge it rightly, football then becomes a thing of evil which should be abandoned. It is also easier for a critic of football to get his name in the paper after the season is over, as the news columns are no longer filled with the thrilling deeds of the gridiron warriors.

Although most college presidents don't know the slightest thing about it, football brings in a revenue that enables the students to take up squash, badminton, dominoes and chess. And why put up an umbrella when it's raining gold?

Pitfield Wins N. E. 880-Yard Swim Title

International Ring Show Wednesday

Dilboy Post's second annual international amateur boxing tournament among Nova Scotia, New York and Massachusetts is slated for Wednesday evening at Dilboy Field, Somerville.

The international classes to be contested are the 126, 135, 147 pounds and heavyweight. The 118 and 160-pound divisions are open.

VINES LIKELY TO BE ON '32 CUP TEAM

New York, Aug. 17 (U.P.) Ellsworth Vines of Pasadena, Cal., will probably be on the United States Davis cup team in 1932 and Sidney B. Wood of Forest Hills will in all probability be out of it.

Samuel Hardy, famous lawn tennis official and non-playing captain of the [illegible] to England [illegible] national matches [illegible] Vines has improved greatly in the last [illegible] Hardy [illegible] Vines will [illegible] improve [illegible] next [illegible].

[illegible] the 1932 [illegible] if he proceeds to the final in September [illegible] Oregon [illegible].

"While the 1932 cup lineup is, of course, tentative as yet, it looks like Vines has a splendid chance, on his great record to date; Shields, Lott and Van Ryn, with Wood not yet a certainty. Still young, the latter has shown a tendency to tighten up in his big matches and has not come through as expected," Hardy declared.

LIFE GUARD 1ST IN L ST. SWIM

James Cullen, Dewey Beach life guard struggled through dangerous cross currents to win the first Boston Light to L st. swim held under the auspices of the L Street Swimming Club. His time for the new eight-mile course was 5 hours 42 seconds.

Of the 14 who left the shores of Boston Light, the Charlestown life guard was the sole one to finish the race. Julius Jesonis, Frank Nunan and veteran Sam Richards were forced to quit.

The late start of the race according to contestants was the reason for their failure to finish.

Fred Frame Sets New Speed Record

Woodbridge, N. J., Aug. 17 (INS) After lowering the track record for the half mile in the trial heats Fred Frame, Los Angeles driver captured the 25-mile feature automobile race yesterday at the Woodbridge speedway.

Frame was clocked in 21 2-5 seconds for the half-mile, clipping one-fifth of a second from the record set by Billy Winn of Atlanta several weeks ago.

On the Air

Of the 13,427 letters NBC received Aug. 3, ranging in tone from encomiums to Bronx cheers, one did not go the usual route. This letter from a 13-year-old girl, and postmarked Caldwell, N. J., offered a suggestion for a new p'gram and after bouncing around for a day or two it landed on Phil Carlin's desk. From there it traveled fast. In fact so fast that Wednesday at 2 45 you will hear little June Rollar in her own p'gram of music on a "gazooka," a poem written and read by herself and her version of a true mystery story.

Mickey (Good Little Man) Walker will exercise his voice o'er the NBC the 26th . . . Doreen Glover, WNAC'S wide-awake Dream Girl leaves for N. Y. to cope with many beauties for the 1931 Miss Radio title . . . Rudy Vallee led Ted Weems by 4000 votes in a music journal's orch. leader popularity contest, Paul Whiteman, Denny and Lopez.

When Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh reach Tokio, NBC will reb-dcast the official greeting. . . . Bennie Leonard and Jimmy Martin engaged in three rounds of exhibition fighting at the CBS television studio last week, and this week Gamby will ballet-dance before the same gadgets. To fight promoters and show magnates this may be the drizzle before the thunderstorm . . . Ben Selvin and orch., Audrey Marsh singing and Louis Witten announcing will feature a new commercial o'er the NBC Sept. 5 . . . Phil Dewey, baritone of the Men About Town, leaves the trio to join the Revelers the 24th. Dewey replaces Elliott Shaw, thereby changing one of the oldest and favorite combinations on the air . . . Linus (WNAC) Travers' book, "Program Builders" will be on sale in Oct. which is about the same time John (WBZ) Clark's radio book goes on sale . . . Since they are not twins and because they place their singing before their tippling the Twin Tipplers would fain change their name. The boys make their WEEI debut the 28th at 5 20 . . . Mimi the office cat meows that Horace Heidt shifted from WNAC to WBZ possibly because his stopping off place and the WBZ studios are in the same hotel. Thereby saving him time and effort . . . NBC vows that Jack Denny will b'dcast tomorrow eve. at 11:30 . . . Kaye Don, speedboat record breaker, will be NBC-ed Wed. . . . More and more does NBC'S E. H. A. grow more like WEEI'S E. F. A. The former answers on the air any and all questions asked of him. E. F. A. has been doing that for WEEI (not on the air) about six years now.

Ghandi Revolt Cuts India Foreign Trade

Bombay, Aug. 17 (AP)—The effect of Mahatma Gandhi's civil disobedience movement and the boycott of British goods, coupled with the general economic depression in India last year, was indicated by official statistics issued today, revealing a slump in foreign trade.

Foreign trade at India's three principal seaports, Bombay, Calcutta and Karachi, decreased $325,000,000, one-third less than the previous year.

Deposits "Flood" Bay State Banks

Paying interest rates that compare favorably with yields on investments of comparable safety and serving as convenient repositories for funds until investment skies are clearer, Massachusetts savings banks are still being offered a substantial volume of new deposits. This is described by some banks as a "flood." Due to difficulty of the banks in investing new funds, increase in deposits presents perplexing problems, for which varied solutions are being tried.

Loans by Morris Plan Banks Gain

If mass psychology with its reluctance to spend or to utilize the channels of consumer credit has contributed to the business recession, then there is a shift for the better apparent in industrial banking statistics, says the Morris Plan Corporation of America.

Loans made in 101 leading Morris Plan banks for the three months ending June 30 increased $3,630,322 to a total of $47,145,683 [illegible] the quarter.

SOVIET BUYING IN U. S. BIG

Almost 75 per cent of American exports of farm implements in 1931 have gone to Soviet Russia, it was disclosed today in an analysis of foreign trade statistics prepared by Moody's Investors Service. During the first six months of this year, the survey finds that Russia took from the United States agricultural machinery valued at $37,216,000 or 74.3 per cent of our entire foreign shipments, while Canada and Argentine, our best foreign customers in predepression years, together purchased less than 10 per cent of the total.

BUSINESS GAIN IS NOTED

New York, Aug. 17 (AP) Returning from a two months trip to Europe Hubert P. Parson, president of F. W. Woolworth Co., said he found business conditions abroad especially in France showed some improvement.

Commenting on the business of the parent company in the United States he said that at the close of July the company's sales were less than half of 1 per cent behind last year, "and with a fair August we should be able to overcome this by the close of the month."

RELIEF IDEAS FOR SURPLUSES ARE OFFERED

By FRANK H. MELOON

Joseph Wilshire

Recently Joseph Wilshire, able New England president of Standard Brands, was quoted as [illegible] the wheat surplus problem here could be solved if every American ate a little more bread every day. This was recalled by the active buying which lifted wheat and corn in the Chicago pit following Moscow advices that the Soviet would abandon its [illegible] [illegible] possible.

Traders [illegible] Joseph Wilshire [illegible] of wheat in [illegible] a little [illegible]

"If all the women in China would put four-inch ruffles on the bottom of their dresses," he said "they soon would use up all the surplus cotton."

The first gentleman we ever heard making the above comment was the late W. P. G. Harding when he was Governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston.

On successive days in the past week President E. W. Beatty of Canadian Pacific and John J. Raskob, General Motors' financial genius, have issued statements declaring the bottom of depression has been reached. They follow by some weeks the opinion given by William Danforth, Boston's "[illegible] bear," who lent emphasis to his convictions by widespread buying. Some Wall and State st. opinion inclines to the belief that buying by Mr. Danforth and his followers has been mainly instrumental in bringing about the stock market rally.

Incidentally, it is interesting to note though perhaps only a coincidence that the market's first vigorous upturn came with the announcement of moratorium plans and the second with the cables telling of their being whipped into shape.

Betterment for the American lumber industry is indicated for the week ended July 25, when orders for lumber were approximately [illegible] per cent greater than the cut of 8[illegible] leading hardwood and softwood mills according to the National Lumber Manufacturers Association.

Production of these mills totaled 203,309,000 feet while shipments were 16 per cent above this figure. A week earlier 806 mills reported orders 1 per cent above and shipments 3 per cent below a cut of 208,012,000 feet.

Better conditions in the hosiery industry as previously noted here are reported today by R. E. [illegible], vice president and general manager of the Gotham Silk Hosiery Co. Price situation is tending to adjust itself he says and [illegible] of better grade merchandise are relatively light. Inventory of the Gotham Co., he reports, has been reduced from $4,250,000 to around $1,000,000. Larger retailers in his opinion are tiring of cheap merchandise.

Ohio's battle against motor lines is watched with interest elsewhere. It is by no means certain that the State possesses the right it seeks to exercise. The order by the public utilities commission of Ohio denying application of Cleveland, Akron & Chicago Motor Lines to use State highway No. 20 within Ohio from Cleveland to Chicago via Toledo raises important questions in the controversy between rails and motor truck lines and motor bus lines for traffic. These questions probably will be given legal interpretation, as the motor line has announced the denial will be appealed to the Supreme Court of Ohio.

A survey of State highways to determine traffic congestion is planned by the commission. Meanwhile all applications to use the highways are held in abeyance, and the commission has intimated that should its order denying use of the highways on basis of danger to public safety and injury to highways be upheld by the Supreme Court, it will follow a strict policy in granting permits to motor lines seeking to use other State highways which are heavily traveled.

Bullish Prophets Give Fresh Views

Brokerage house, which last week led with prophetic word that the market had definitely turned, today stated:

"With three days of steadily advancing prices to its credit, the market today is likely to have its rise contested. Only a point or two higher for the industrial average will bring this group to the recovery level of July 21. We look for this difference to be made up this morning and then it is suggested that quick turn trading lines be tightened. If a technical correction occurs we expect it will offer an opportunity to replace short swing commitments."

Too Many Option Operations Today

J. P. Maher, former financial editor of the New York American, wires today:

"As was the case with the false moves of last year there are too many option operations going on to permit of much faith in the present bullish activities. The further advances that seem in prospect will afford good trading opportunities but the utmost caution is necessary."

Pennsy in Need of Freight Gain

Lacking improvement in freight car loadings in the coming months it seems fairly certain that Pennsylvania will fail to cover its current $3 a share dividend this year. Earnings have run at the rate of around $2.50 a share for the year and an increase in the freight movement is necessary to bring the actual results above this figure.

Bonds Are Irregular in a Quiet Market

New York, Aug. 17. The bond market was irregular today in quiet trading. As a group foreign obligations were the most active. German loans soared good gains on the early sales but the 7s of 1949 lost their advance and the 5½s of 1965 soon dipped below Saturday's closing level. The 6s of October 1960 of the German Central Agricultural Bank lost ground also on a few sales.

Record Order for Brake Beams Given

New York, Aug. 17—At Franklin Pa., the Chicago Railway Equipment Co., has started work on 10,000 steel brake beams for the Erie Railroad. It is the largest order the plant has received in three years. The contract means three months' work for one mill.

Rubber Barely Steady

New York, Aug. 17.—Rubber futures today were barely steady, Sept. 5.20, Dec. 5.40. New contracts, Sept. 5.25, Dec. 5.54, March 5.74.

Dividends

E. I. du Pont de Nemours, Inc. declared regular quarterly dividend of $1 on the common, payable Sept. 15 to stock of record Aug. 27.

Brill Corporation declared regular preferred dividend of 1¾ per cent, payable September 1, to stockholders of record August 20.

* * *

Bankers Trust Company, as depositary of ordinary sterling shares of Rand Mines, Limited, has received dividend No. 56 of 40 per cent and is paying to holders of certificates for "American Shares" (each such certificate representing 2¼ deposited ordinary shares) $1.214 per "American Share" equivalent of such dividend at the current rate of exchange.

STOCKS LOWER IN WALL ST. SETBACK

New York, Aug. 17—Important shares on the New York Stock Exchange today were lower. Bull leaders stepped aside, traders took profits and bears threw out short lines, with the result that some fair-sized declines were recorded before rallying appeared.

After the extensive advances of last week, traders were inclined to feel the market would have to consolidate its position with a technical setback before the advance could be resumed.

REACTION IS SHARP

With absence of impressive signs of seasonal revocery in trade and the bad psychological effect of Toledo financial suspensions, the reaction was considerably more severe than anticipated.

Selling was fairly active in the morning, and numerous declines of 2 to 6 points appeared—the sharpest reaction since the response to U. S. Steel's dividend cut.

The list turned dull around midday, however, and losses were moderately reduced for a time.

Issues making extreme declines of 2 to 4 points included such stocks as U. S. Steel, American Telephone, American Can, Southern Pacific, New York Central, Woolworth, Sears, and Electric Autolite. Case and Allied Chemical dropped 5 and 6, then recovered 2 and 3 respectively.

Despite the unsettling psychological effects of the Toledo banking situation, the final necessity of suspension was not surprising to well-informed quarters in Wall Street, where the continued delays in announcing the projected merger of the three institutions had been regarded as scarcely promising.

On the whole, the banking situation has been vastly improved in the past 10 months, and it is said in high financial circles that a hangover situation should not be permitted to obscure that fact.

OIL ACTION FAVORED

Oil quarters here were generally inclined to applaud the action of Governor Sterling of Texas in forcibly shutting down the East Texas pool, pending the putting into effect of the states new oil conservation law.

The oil shares were inclined to firm up a little in the initial trading, but the tendency was soon lost in the general decline which ensued.

Good headway has been made in reducing stocks of gasoline on hand during the season of heavy consumption, and with crude output now checked in Texas and Oklahoma, it is confidently felt that the groundwork is being laid for a more satisfactory price structure.

Bankers expect final arrangements for maintaing the existing short-term credits in Germany will be completed this week. Wall St. is watching with considerable interest the efforts to effect drastic economies in England.

On the whole, the international financial situation has been considerably ameliorated, but in important Wall st. banking circles, it is pointed out that, with the end of the Hoover debt moraforum now little more than 10 months away, the question of the resumption of payments will hang over the situation as an unsettling influence for months. It could prove an important obstacle toward the funding of any of German's short-term indebtedness.

Weekly reviews of two prominent financial advisory services appearing today were inclined to the view that, despite the recent recovery in the shares market, long-term investors need be in no hurry to make commitments.

One service, however, suggested moderate commitmnts in slected issues in periods of weakness by those with the larger portion of their funds uninvested.

Business Defaults in Further Drop

Business defaults last week numbered 426, one fewer than was reported the previous week and marks the fourth successive weekly decline. An increase of 8.4 per cent, however, is shown over the like week of 1930 and 33.1 per cent over the corresponding week of 1929.

Defaults among the retailers totaled 307, or 72.1 per cent of the total number, as against 305, or 71.5 per cent in the preceding week. The manufacturing group came second last week with 42 failures, or 9.9 per cent of the total, while the commercial service group, with 40 defaults, ranked next with 9.4 per cent of the total.

Passengers Carried in Air Increased

Chicago, Aug. 17—United Air Lines companies, Boeing, National and Pacific Air Transport and Varney Air Lines, carried 33 per cent more revenue passengers in July than in June and approximately the same volume of mail and express, according to figures released today. United Air Lines is the operating subsidiary of United Aircraft and Transport Corporation.

Kroger Expansion of Stores Planned

Cincinnati, Aug 17—Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. will open four stores in Sears, Roebuck & Co. units within a month. Two stores will be opened in St. Louis and one each in Kansas City and Memphis. A store also will be opened in Detroit, although time has not yet been decided.

Atchison Loadings Greater for Week

Chicago, Aug. 17—Atchinson, Topeka & Santa Fe railway in week ended August 15 handled 82,750 revenue freight cars, against 80,886 in the previous week and 86,286 in the like 1930 week.

ADVICE TO INVESTORS IS FREE

Before you buy or sell stocks or bonds, you ought to secure unbiased expert advice. Send your investment inquiries with stamp to Frank H. Meloon, Financial Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Sq., Boston. All replies are made by mail direct.

DEVOE & RAYNOLDS

F. S. G., Waltham—Please tell me something about Devoe & Raynolds. I have been informed that the stock is going up. Do you think this is so?

Ans.—You must judge future prices for yourself. In this respect your opinion is as good as anyone's.

Devoe & Raynolds Co., Inc., is the second largest factor in the paint industry, manufacturing a comprehensive line of interior, exterior and industrial paints, varnishes, dry colors, brushes, insecticides, etc. It owns seven plants and distributes through a substantial number of its own outlets.

Sales, especially for industrial uses, have experienced a downward trend since the beginning of the business depression, thereby causing a reversal of the previous earnings expansion. Through rigid operating economies, a considerably better showing has been made this year, net for the six months ended May 31, last, having amounted to $0.56 per class A share, against $0.32 in the like period a year earlier.

Since the economy program is becoming more potent and the sales decline from a year earlier is not likely to be greater in the second half than it was in the first (because of the unusual slump after June last year,) there is a fair prospect that the final six months will not be less profitable than the initial half, says Standard Statistics.

For the fiscal term ended November 30, 1930, a per share deficit of $0.22 was reported on the combined class A and B common shares, against a profit of $4.52 a share in the previous year.

Dividends recently were reduced to a $0.60 annual rate, from $1.20, and a strong financial position would permit payment in the final quarter even if the annual rate is not earned for the full year. The company's current ratio was 10.5-to-1 at end of June, last.

WARREN BROTHERS

L. L. M. Allston—I am holding 20 shares of Warren Brothers bought at higher levels. Shall I hold or sell? Please give me some up-to-date facts about the company.

Ans.—You must make the decision yourself. Guessing future prices is out of our line.

Warren Brothers is one of the leading factors in the construction of streets and roads and the manufacture of bituminous paving. Activities, extending throughout the world, normally are divided about equally between domestic and foreign business.

Recent completion of the extensive Cuban Central Highway, however, and the universal business depression, leave the company, for the first time in several years, with no foreign paving contracts of importance.

Vast potential contracts cannot be closed because of the inability of foreign governments to provide adequate financing—a condition which may continue well into 1932.

On the other hand, the stimulation of road building activities in this country (to relieve unemployment) has provided the company with more domestic business than a year ago, but this gain is insufficient to offset the sharp declines abroad.

Interim earnings are not reported regularly, but the recent reduction of the common dividend to $2 per annum, from the former $3 rate, is taken to indicate that returns for the full year will not greatly exceed the revised payment, according to Standard Statistics. Net for each of the past four years (largely contributed to by the Cuban highway contract) was substantial, having reached a peak of $6.09 a common share in 1930, against $6.06 a share in the previous year.

In March, last, a $5,000,000 bond issue was floated to provide working capital, because some eight to ten million dollars had been tied up in Cuban bonds accepted at 95 per cent of par in payment for road construction. The paper loss on these foreign bonds is substantial but the company expects to realize in full at maturity in 1935.

In addition to funded debt, capitalization consists of three small issues of preferred stock, followed by 472,944 shares of no par common.

Financial position is believed to be fair.

RATE MAINTAINED

J. LL., Chelsea—I am holding some American Locomotive common at a severe loss. Is the dividend secure?

Ans.—American Locomotive common is a speculation. However, stockholders will receive a quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share Sept. 30, the same amount distributed June 30, when the rate was cut to $1 a share, contrasted with $2, $4 and $8 paid from 1925. Earnings last year were adversely affected by the business depression. Net of $1.41 a share, contrasted with $5.04 in 1929.

MUST DECIDE

L. G., Medford—I have 35 shares Atlantic Refining much above current prices. Shall I hold or sell?

Ans.—You must make the decision. Though Atlantic Refinin? is still on a $1 annual dividend basis, rate maintained since four-for-one split October, 1929, the stock is speculative. Operations for six months ended June 30 brought a loss of $1,013,000, or deficit of $1.49 a share, compared with net income of $2,818,823, or $1.05 a share in the corresponding period of last year. In 1930 net was $1.02 a share against $6.20 in 1929.

Forbes Views Recovery as Certain as Sun's Rising

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Aug. 17—It is very difficult, after a four months' absence, to size up just what's what businesswise. So far I have not been able to find conclusive evidence that the turn has definitely started. Nor have I yet obtain sufficient information to reach a pronounced opinion as to whether unemployment and other unsettling factors are likely to carry stock market values substantially lower within the next six months.

B. C. Forbes

Looking farther afield, however, one can have no hesitation in feeling certain that we are nearing bottom both in business and in securities, and that there will by-and-by come very emphatic recovery.

Current pessimism concerning America's future is childishly shortsighted.

When a garden which had become thick with weeds is taken in hand and the weeds are uprooted, it has a very sorry appearance. It looked much more vigorous and thriving while flowers and weeds abounded.

But for the sake of the garden's future the destruction of the weeds was essential, no matter how much the flowers and the general appearance might suffer.

Our economic garden had become inordinately choked with weeds in 1929. The pruning process has been very thoroughgoing. Today the garden looks shockingly dilapidated. But, rid of the weeds, it is now ready to produce healthy flowers, vegetables and fruit.

All financial history reveals that hopelessness invariably becomes most prevalent at the very time curative processes were about ready to bring encouraging results.

There can be little question that we have almost reached, if we have not completely reached, that stage now.

No labored argument, no tedious recital of facts and figures, is necessary to prove that the weeding-out process has been extremely drastic.

We need only glance at the abnormally low prices today ruling for every basic commodity, to the extraordinary decline in production and consumption, to the phenomenal cheapness and superabundance of money in the nation's financial center, to the abject timidity exhibited by buyers all along the line, to the almost unprecedented amount of unemployment, to the virtual disappearance of speculation for the rise in stocks, real estate, raw materials, everything.

That this forward and upward movement will come is as certain as the rising of the sun and the recurrence of the seasons.

The time element always is an uncertain factor. It is so—at least in my humble opinion—now.

On reader writes seeking to convince me that we are bound to have 10 more lean years. Bosh!

This country has experienced major panics and depressions which left it barren of available capital, mountains of frozen inventories, scant savings, ruined wage scales, vast debts abroad, specie at a premium and clearing house certificates as substitutes for currency.

Yet we never once failed to climb back to prosperity heights.

What a contrast then and now! The world owes us billions. Our savings deposits total an unparalleled sum. Capital and credit are plentiful. Wage scales are high, not low. We have a favorable foreign trade balance. Of mountainous inventories there are none. Half our railroads are not operating under receiverships. Few of our business corporations are over their heads in debt to banks. We suffer from no devastating crop failures—rather have we an embarrassment of agricultural products. Our industrial facilities are efficient beyond anything known during earlier panics.

Heavens! If we were able and we were—to stage a comeback after every other panic, although we were then relatively poor and infinitely worse crippled, have we become so impotent that we can never hope to raise ourselves from the slough of despond with all that we have at our command today?

To ask the question is to answer it.

London Selling on Government Plans

London, Aug. 17 (AP)—London stock market today was unsettled. Uncertainty over the outcome of the government's economy plans induced selling. British funds closed ½ to 1 lower, Brazilian and German bonds were firm exceptions.

Paris—Satisfactory reports from abroad permitted fortnightly settlement with only slight fluctuations, but business was small.

Berlin—Boerse closed.

Increased Tonnage for Sears Is Seen

Chicago, Aug. 17—Dollar sales of Sears-Roebuck & Co. during the eighth period of its 13-period year were 6.2 per cent less than last years, the comparative sales statement issued today showed. With commodity prices reckoned as down about 15 per cent, these figures indicate well increa

Texas Oil Action Seen as Bettered

New York, Aug. 17—Law enacted last week by Texas Legislature for conservation of oil and gas was generally welcomed by oil executives of major companies as an improvement over the old law, which was ineffective in limiting output of an oil field unless voluntary consent of all producers in that particular field could be obtained. While new law is not so drastic as some companies wished, it is believed less likely to be declared unconstitutional should some unwilling producer decide to attack it.

Record Pipe Line Opening Is Near

Next month the greatest natural-gas pipe line ever undertaken will be put into operation, the $100,000,000 high-pressure line from Amarillo field, Texas, to Chicago, more than 900 miles long.

It should be ready for service Sept. 1. Companies interested are the Cities Service Co., the Insull interests, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Texas Corp., Skelly Oil Co., Southwestern Development Co., Phillips Petroleum Corp. and Columbian Carbon Co.

Boston Elevated Railway Company

OFFICES OF THE
BOARD OF PUBLIC TRUSTEES
PARK SQUARE BUILDING
BOSTON, MASS.

August 14, 1931.

To the Holders of
Second Preferred stock of the Boston Elevated Railway Company;
Preferred stock of the Boston Elevated Railway Company:

Supplementary to the notice dated July 2, 1931, heretofore published and mailed, you are hereby notified that, in accordance with Section 9 of Chapter 333 of the Acts of 1931, the Board of Trustees of the Boston Elevated Railway Company has fixed August 18, 1931, as the date on or after which all "assenting stockholders" shall be entitled to present their certificates of preferred stocks of all classes to the Treasurer of the Company or to a bank or trust company designated by the said Trustees, for the purpose of surrender and cancellation and receipt of payment therefore on the basis provided in said Act.

The Board of Trustees have designated the Old Colony Trust Company (address Transfer Department, 17 Court Street, Boston) as the Trust Company to which certificates may be so presented.

It will be more convenient, if the certificates are presented to the Old Colony Trust Company where funds will be on deposit to meet the payments required, than if they are presented to the Treasurer of the Company.

All "assenting stockholders" are bound to present, on or after said August 18, 1931, their certificates of all preferred stocks of all classes held by them for surrender and cancellation and receipt of payment as provided in said Act.

All other holders or owners of preferred stock of all classes may present their certificates on or after said date and receive payment on the same basis as "assenting stockholders" provided their stock certificates are not stamped "non assenting."

Said Act provides for payment on the following basis:

> "for each share of first preferred stock, one hundred and ten dollars; for each share of second preferred stock, one hundred and two dollars; for each share of the preferred stock, one hundred dollars, together with the accrued dividends at the rate fixed for each of said classes from the last dividend date thereof to and including the day on which this act takes effect and with interest at the rate of five per cent per annum from the date dividends cease as hereinbefore provided to the date so fixed for presentation."

Under said Act dividends on all classes of preferred stock ceased on July 1, 1931, and interest allowed by the Act on stock surrendered will cease on said August 18, 1931. Consequently it is to the advantage of stockholders to present their certificates promptly in order to avoid loss of interest.

Stock certificates should be endorsed to "Boston Elevated Railway Company for surrender and cancellation in accordance with Ch. 333 of Acts of 1931."

Signature must correspond with the name as written upon the face of the certificate in every particular without alteration or enlargement or any change whatever.

Checks for amount due will be made payable as name appears on stock certificate. If it is desired that checks be made payable in any other form, because of sale or pledge of stock, decease of stockholder, change in trustees or other valid reason, the proof of title should be submitted to the Old Colony Trust Company or to the Treasurer of the Company, for instructions regarding documentary authority or other evidence or papers required.

Pacifists Are Routed

Cornwallis Scene to Stay in Pageant

The British flag has been hauled down again at Yorktown, and Old Glory hoisted once more over the battlefield on which American independence was finally wrung from headstrong European royalty.

Another victory has been won on this sacred soil, over an idea almost as inimical to the liberties of a free people as the old idea of the divine right of kings, which on a greensward close by the mouth of the majestic York River, on an October day one hundred and fifty years ago, received such a mighty blow that the swords of Emperors and Kaisers have never since been able to restore it to the vicious thing it used to be.

This idea, now happily discredited, is one that somehow got about that a people should cease to remember that their liberties were won in the sweat and toil of war by force of arms, that FREEDOM FOLLOWS UPON VICTORY, not defeat.

When any people reach that point they are gone.

It is this that made the recent action of the Yorktown Sesquicentennial Commission, in deciding to leave the entire episode of the surrender of Lord Cornwallis out of the celebration, authorized by Congress to commemorate that particular thing, and not a thing else on earth, a matter of the deepest national concern.

The reaction to this INCREDIBLY STUPID and SUPINE COURSE on the part of the Yorktown Commission, whether entered upon hastily and without thought, or at the white-spatted instigation of somebody in the State Department who has adopted tea-pouring as a career, was instant, widespread, overwhelming!

Now that the smoke of battle has cleared away at Yorktown, and the Commission, as it should have done in the first instance when the blunder was discovered, has tardily reversed itself, and done an "about face," and the surrender of Lord Cornwallis maintains its place as a chapter heading in American history, and is not to become a mere obscure footnote tucked away with an apology in the appendix, the incident is revealed as not without its compensations.

For American public opinion has won a major engagement against the INSIDIOUS POISON OF PACIFISM.

The Cornwallis surrender scene in the Yorktown pageant became symbolic. Its deletion reflected the sickly sentimentalism of a certain school of thought.

Its restoration, by the same token, is a recognition of the basic soundness of historic American tradition thus far handed down to the generation of today clean and wholesome from the uncontaminated wellsprings of our revolutionary inspirations.

SO GEORGE WASHINGTON IS TO BE THE HERO OF YORKTOWN IN 1931, AS HE WAS IN 1781. THAT IS WELL.

Americans need feel no shame for his victory!

What he did that October day on the fertile plains of Virginia, which Benedict Arnold, serving under Lord Cornwallis, had ravaged and laid waste to the very gates of Richmond, was a service to mankind, for which mankind need have no regret.

It was good, it was eternally right, it was just; and being good, right and just, Americans may cherish that surrender as marking the downfall of tyranny.

When a people get to the point that they cannot celebrate the downfall of their own tyrant, they are in a bad way. Well, happily, we can do so.

And make no mistake about what George Washington did that day when he received the sword of Cornwallis. That gentleman was no philanthropist, giving something for nothing. When he gave away the American empire of George III, he did it because he had to; because men with guns in their hands had forced him to do so, NOT BECAUSE A LOT OF PALAVERING PACIFISTS HAD ARGUED HIM INTO IT.

This is the lesson of Yorktown that is borne home to the American people today as they confront at home and abroad the DEADLY DOCTRINE THAT INTERNATIONAL CURE-ALLS CAN TAKE THE PLACE OF THE REMEDY THAT WASHINGTON APPLIED, BOOTED AND SPURRED, ON HORSEBACK, AT THE HEAD OF HIS ARMY OF GRIM AND DETERMINED PATRIOTS.

Rats Menace Children

Clean Out Old Hulks at East Boston

"These abandoned hulks at low water provide an ideal breeding place for rats and vermin of all sorts.

"At night these rodents infest all homes in this section and they have attained such size that they constitute a danger to sleeping children."

The above is a report not of conditions in poverty-stricken India or on the Barbary Coast of Africa.

It is a report of filthy, indecent, dangerous conditions along the shore of East Boston, in the Athens of America, supposed to have the finest State and municipal governments anywhere, always alert to the safety and health of the public.

Some sixty hulks of old ships have been allowed to rot on the shore along the Condor Street section.

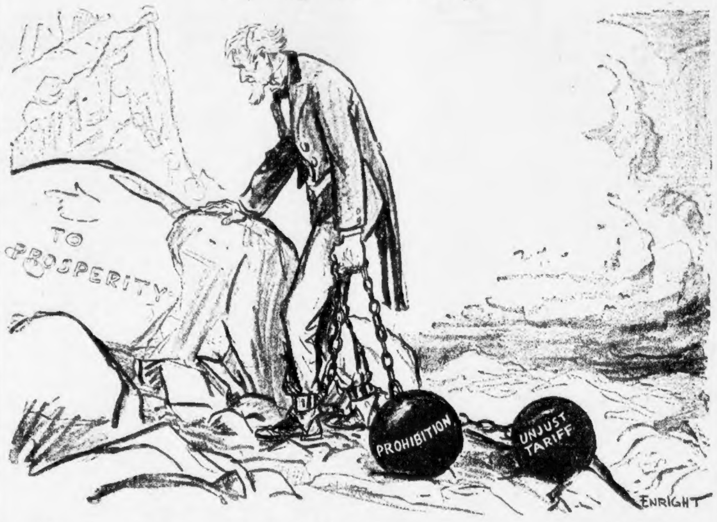
Dr. Mahoney of the Health Department and Mr. Parkhurst of the Port Authority condemn them as cesspools of filth, incubators of contagious diseases and hatcheries of the filthiest species of animal life.

These gentlemen are to be commended for the frankness with which they expose and attack this outrageous condition at a time when public officialdom finds it more convenient to evade responsibilities and to conceal filth and corruption wherever it exists.

Mere reports, however, will not get rid of the cesspools which endanger the health of adults and the lives of children.

Dr. Mahoney and Mr. Parkhust must put the facts before Governor Ely and Mayor Curley and rely upon them to cleanse this stench at a time when unemployed men can profitably be ut to work.

Heavy Handicaps



A tired, worn, worried Uncle, unjustly shackled with abominable Prohibition and the iniquitous Hawley-Smoot-Grundy tariff, strives with his might to come out of the Vale of Depression.

Longingly he eyes the Path of Plenty that leads to Prosperity.

But unless relieved of the ball and chain he will find the path steep, the going hard, the way rough.

Revision of the tariff act would check the retaliatory tactics of other nations against us, open foreign markets to American products, put our factories on FULL TIME and give JOBS to many of the JOBLESS.

Revision of the dry laws to make legal the sale of wholesome light wine and beer would enrich Uncle's Treasury with excise taxes, stop the flood of poisonous bootleg that inundates the country, check the growing intemperate use of hard liquor, and, by opening the breweries, provide an outlet for the surplus grain of the farmer and provide JOBS for 1,250,000 unemployed.

You would be worried, too, Dear Reader, if you were in Uncle's shoes.

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Make a Verse of This

"My country 'tis of thee,
Sweet land of liberty—
Of thee I sing!"

NICE SONG — huh? Love to sing it? Makes you swell with pride and gratitude to think you belong to such a swell place — yes? All right while you're singing it, make a verse of this.

Elsie Robinson

Make a verse about nearly three thousand children thrown into federal prisons . . . all of them under 18 years of age, many of them under 14, some of them 12.

Little, skinny children with small bones like birds and wide, bewildered eyes . . . make a verse about them being put into "solitary" for "discipline"—

(While you're singing, think of your little 12-year-old girl being shut into such a hole — battering with her small, soft hands against the darkness—shrieking, screaming, sobbing, whimpering . . . whispering . . . until a greater darkness came, a merciful silence. Till, opening the door next morning, they found her dead—such a tiny body stretched on that bare plank!)

Make a verse, a pretty, gay verse, about little feet locked in leg irons . . . rough, black links cutting into the pale flesh—

Make a verse about children flogged . . .

..Seventy pounds of naked child flesh "spread eagled" on a frame and flogged with a blacksnake by a grown man . . . flogged because a little boy or girl had "made loud popping noises with their mouth," kicked a refuse can, stolen an apple.

Make a particularly joyful, proud verse about lines of children marching around, around, around, around ceaselessly . . . stopping only twice a day for bread and water.

You won't make a verse? You think I'm joking? Pulling "sob-sister stuff?" I wish I were. I wish to God I were!

But this is the truth. This is what is happening in your and my "sweet land of liberty" today . . . what has been happening for many years. Don't believe it? Read the recently released National (Wickersham) Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement Report. 152 pages are filled with news items like that.

And for what frightful crime were these children committed to federal penitentiaries?

Well, they "violated the Eighteenth Amendment"—by delivering a booze bootle for some adult. They "violated the Mann Act"—fell in love (15-year-old love!), tried to elope, crossed the border . . . Didn't 15-year-old Jimmy know that if he crossed the border with 13-year-old Jenny he was making a White Slave of her? If he didn't, his Uncle Sam will "learn him," via the blacksnake and the black hole.

And then there are the vicious outlaws (aged 11 and 12) who break open a freight car to swipe some grapes . . . or snitch some stamps out of a country post office, so they can go to the movies. Federal prisoners — marching in lock-step with murderers and thieves!

Make a verse of that! Make a verse to drown out the sound of little girls screaming, of little boys sobbing.

Horrible? What can be done about it? Dr. Miriam Van Waters, heading the special juvenile investigation (referee of the Los Angeles Juvenile Court, expert consultant to the Harvard Law School Crime Survey) says it can be stopped if we'll take such children out of federal jurisdiction, put them under state authority. Maybe . . . but I suspect she's an optimist . . . Prison walls are as high and thick in state pens as in federal ones . . . local hearts as cold, local brains as dumb as those in Washington. Something more is needed—

Didn't we go to war to save the Belgian Babies?

In London

Limehouse District

LONDON, Aug. 17—London's squalor sinks to lowest depths in the neighborhood of Limehouse and Pennyfields and the vicious warren of streets around West India Dock road where bowsprits stare into windows and windows into ships. I made a visit last night with a man from Scotland Yard.

Enpassant, there is nothing of the flat-footed, derbied dick with the jutting jaw about plain clothes men from the Yard. This one, named Cyril, was a smooth voiced gentleman of quiet elegance—the sort one felt could back out of a yard with dignity.

We took a train from Fenchurch street and ploughed jerkily through bleak unfriendly pale lit places to Blackwall Station.

Stepping from the grime of the station one is refreshed by a brisk scour of breeze from the water and sight of amazing leviathans, flung up like cliffs, in the miracle of berthing and extrication.

The most impressive thing about Limehouse, in contrast to whirring winches, screaming cranes and general bedlam is the lassitude and incredible filth of the denizens. They stand drooping and uncommunicative in doorwa[illegible], on sidewalks and in public houses. Libe congealo.

Docks are docks the world over. Always sucking a great city's human scum to their jetties. Yet nowhere does stagnation seem so complete as here. Before quitting the quarter we saw a drunken fellow hopping grotesquely into a pub. He had pawned a peg leg around the corner for a "night cap."

Hyde Park's oratory spouts livelier than ever. Right by the Marble Arch are the portable platforms that may be hired for a small fee and anyone may talk on any subject. There are no restrictions. Thus does the Crown permit discontents to "blow off steam." The King may come in for a raking, a javelin for the Prince or a jest for Queen Mary's hat. Chiefly, however, it is the battle ground of creeds where enthusiasts trim God to their particular dimensions. Yet lately much Communist propaganda is spread there. And many regard this laxity as a chink in the British armor.

One of the speakers after lunch today was a violently flaming Red. He looked not unlike Trotzky save for a white cataract eye. "In five years," he prophesied, "Buckingham Palace will be a school for workingmen's children. London will be another Moscow and—" but at this I discovered with a sudden start that the other idlers had drifted away. I skipped the gutter, too.

There is something admirable about the passionate sincerity of British tea drinkers. Tea is no longer a temporary refuge from a day's shopping or a rendezvous for gossip. Tea has grown into a full meal — starting with sardines, a plate of Gruyere sandwiches, heavy muffins and winding up with an enormous fruit tart. Tea for two was once rarely more than two shillings. In smart shops today the check has an odd habit of working out at 15 and often at 20 shillings. There is no longer such a thing as tea table talk. Everybody is too busy gouging.

And a tea shop this afternoon had a honey of a name —"The Frisky Cupid." At one of the table was the American actress, Dorothy Dickson, who with Tallulah Bankhead has perhaps enjoyed the longest popularity of any player "from the states."

There is charm up every London street, I suppose. But the majority I find a monotone in grey—cheerless and muggy. I'm getting tuned up to poo-boop-a-doop into an out loud blubber any moment. The four-letter word. I'm not homesick!

Just Folks

The Tramp Discovers Golf

The poor man looked across the fence which shut the golfers in,
His shirt was frayed about his neck, the coat he wore was thin;
A hopeless look was on his face, his brow was lined with care,
As silently he watched the men who played for pleasure there.

And one there was who missed a shot and flung his club away
As if to lose a golfing stroke had spoiled the summer day.
Came others passing, four by four, and worried men they looked,
Perturbed and plainly sick at heart because they sliced or hooked.

One cursed his luck so loudly that the poor man plainly heard.
He looked to see what tragedy distressing had occurred
But all he could discover was a little shining ball
The man had swung a club at and had failed to hit at all.

He thought about his burdens and he thought about his plight,
He remembered that he didn't know where he would sleep at night.
And as he shuffled on his way, "Well, anyhow," said he,
"I should be glad the woes of golf have all been spared to me."

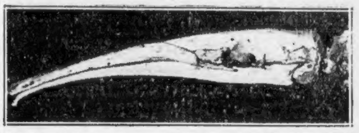
Worker of Wonders

Did Little Cain and Abel See This Animal?



WHAT DO YOU THINK THIS IS? IT IS A SKULL

Nature, the original engineer, has done things in the way of machinery too wonderful for imitation by man.

Scientists, who believe in evolution, tell you that the skull of the giant ant eater, by a slow evolution process through millions of years, has reached this strange and convenient shape.

The snout of the giant ant eater, for we are dealing with a giant ant eater here, grew longer and longer, the worm-shaped tongue grew longer and longer through the hundreds of centuries.

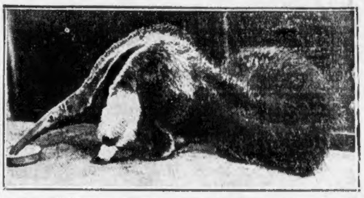
Also the salivary glands in back of the creature's mouth increased in size and power so that they could produce more of the sticky substance which covers the tongue, to which ants stick in thousands.

The ant eater is a great blessing to South America, where ants are the most dangerous enemies of men, sometimes eating up entire houses, destroying every living thing in the line of their march.

The ant eater of strange shape leads a happy life. Other creatures do not compete with him in his food supply. He can swallow tens of thousands of ants, whose sting is fierce, and whose taste and smell of pungent formic acid other insect eating creatures find unbearable.

As you see in the lower picture, the eye and the ear of this creature, in the course of evolution, have become atrophied, dwindled to almost nothing, like your little toe, or vermiform appendix.

The animal is satisfied if he can see well enough to find the huge ant hills, and his hearing is not important since he does not fear savage creatures. If the jaguar, one of the most savage and powerful of the cat tribe, attacks him, he regrets it. He cannot bite through the ant eater's thick, wiry covering. And although he looks feeble, the ant eater is a powerful creature, with long claws that tear open the hard sun-baked houses of the ants. One blow of these claws will tear open the side of a jaguar, ripping out his lungs or heart.



AND THIS IS THE ANIMAL THAT OWNED THE SKULL

If you ever should meet a giant ant eater from South America, do nothing to annoy him. Left alone, he is very peaceful.

Modern fundamentalists who believe that all creatures on earth were made in the Garden of Eden on the same day, and deny the truth of evolution, say this giant ant eater among all the other animals was in the Garden, as you see him here.

Just what he lived on before the fall, when no animal ate any other animal, it is difficult to see. Of course he wouldn't eat the ants then, because they were all his brothers. Perhaps he had some way of eating fruits, all except the apple. He must have made an amusing playmate for little Cain and Abel, if they were wise enough to keep out of the way of his claws.

The marvellously long snout, the long, sticky tongue to which thousands of ants stick, when it is run into their houses, and the powerful claws, were doubtless prepared from the beginning, with knowledge of what was to happen, and of the fact that these animals would depend on ants for their food later.

It is an interesting question, and luckily, under our Constitution, we can all believe what we like about religion, evolution, ant eaters and politics.

It is the duty of each to have his own beliefs, respect the beliefs of others, and attend to his own business, and very few of us do that.
